Airline Shutdown By Pilots Oct. 18

MONTREAL (CP) — Air traffic in Canada will be paralysed Saturday, Oct. 18, because of a dispute over the use of French in air traffic control, it was announced today.

At a news conference, K. A. Malley, president of the Canadian Airline Pilots' Association (CALPA), expressed "regrets that such a protest is necessary."

CALPA has repeatedly stated that it feels bilingual air traffic control is unsafe.

The pilots have been sitting on a committee convened by the department of transport to examine the technical aspects of bilingual air traffic control in Quebec.

The committee was dissolved Thursday without having reached any consensus, he said.

PLANS 'FRIGHTENING'—MACDONALD

Canada Gears for Austerity

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald used the term "frightening" — but Prime Minister Trudeau disagreed with him — as cabinet ministers talked into Thursday night about the new ammunition they will unveil next week for the battle against inflation and unemployment.

". . . the kind of restraints we have in mind are unprecedented in peacetime," said Mr. Macdonald as he entered an evening cabinet session which virtually completed the government's proposals. "If you don't find it as frightening as I do, then let me know."

Some four hours later, at midnight, the ministers emerged from their meeting and Mr. Trudeau disagreed with his finance minister's description of the measures.

"I am surprised Mr. Macdonald would use those words. We're not trying to frighten anyone.

"We assume that people want the government to take action and that's what we're doing."

Meanwhile, with the proposals being kneaded into shape through the late-night cabinet session, Prime Minister Trudeau's office has booked time on national television so the prime minister can talk to the Canadian people Monday night after he spends a scheduled three hours with provincial premiers.

The broadcast, on the CBC, the CTV Television Network and Global, is set for 6 p.m. PDT, despite protests from opposition parties that "partisan" broadcasts should not be made on the eve of elections.

There are two federal byelections Tuesday.

The drama continued to build steadily Thursday as ministers dropped more hints of severe economic measures, as finance officials worked into the night on their assignments, as a team of writers stood by to put everything on paper and as corridors buzzed with reports of a new and mighty control board with power to roll back excessive increases in prices and incomes.

One reliable source said feelers were being put out for a chairman for the new board, which would likely swallow up the present Food Prices Review Board.

Beryl Plumptre, the chairman of the existing board, would retain a high-profile assignment in the new struc-

OTTAWA — New, tough Unemployment Insurance regulations are being considered by cabinet, according to government sources.

Out-of-work persons may be restricted to collecting a week of benefits for every week worked in the preceding 12 months and residents of provinces with a low jobless rate would collect fewer extended benefits than residents of high unemployment provinces.

Purpose of the changes, according to a source privy to the cabinet discussion on the economy Thursday, is not so much to save money for a government hard-pressed by high unemployment benefit costs but rather to remove a disincentive to work.

The federal government would save some money, however, while the provinces could be hit with higher welfare costs as a result.

Under the present regulations, an unemployed person can receive as much as 51 weeks benefits after eight weeks work. Under the proposed changes, a claimant would only receive the number of benefits equalling the number of weeks he had worked in the preceding 12 months.

The second proposal would link benefit rates to regional unemployment, rather than to national statistics, as is now the case.

B.C. Steals A March On Ottawa

The B.C. government stole a march on Ottawa Thursday by publicizing a $150 million cut in this year's budget just prior to the Thanksgiving Day federal-provincial conference at which Prime Minister Trudeau will unveil his government's new economic plan.

Although the province initiated its budget cut-back last December, it had refused until now to give any details of what was involved.

The aim is a minimum cut of 5 per cent in previously planned spending of $3.25 billion, according to Finance Minister Dave Stupich.

This move combined with the strong measures taken this week to put 58,000 striking or locked-out workers back on their jobs, is expected to give Premier Dave Barrett a leading role in the Ottawa talks.

Stupich, who took over the finance portfolio from Barrett a week ago, said he hopes the budget will balance despite declining revenues caused by the forest industry situation.

He expects to trim about $60 million through reductions in the civil service and about $90 million from other expenditures in the fiscal year ending next March 31.

The savings are designed to balance the budget but Stupich said if revenues start to pick up later in the year the money will be spent to expand or start new programs.

Stupich said no one is being laid off under the scheme but, since there is usually a time lag representing 10 per cent of the work force between when a person leaves and is replaced, departments have been asked to stretch the lag to the equivalent of 25 per cent before re-hiring.

Thus a department could be down to 75 per cent of its regular size before new hiring takes place.

Stupich said that with the fiscal year half over, revenues are running just below half the budgeted figure but no specific figures are available.

He said revenues from sales and income taxes are close to expected levels, revenues from coal royalties and the B.C. Petroleum Corp. are expected to exceed expectations but forest revenues are significantly lower.

Total revenues could reach at least $3.1 billion, he said.

B.C. ferries and some government hospitals have been exempted from the ruling, the minister said. If the treasury board is convinced extra hiring is necessary, it will be approved.

Winter Ferries Cut

B.C. Ferries plans to return to a reduced schedule of sailings between Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland during the winter months.

Last year for the first time the ferries operated on an hourly basis throughout the winter but ferry officials said today the full service was not being used and some ferries were running nearly empty.

Traffic volumes actually decreased last winter compared to 1973, probably because of the increased cost of gasoline, and officials don't expect traffic to pick up this year.

B.C. Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher said not only did less people use the ferries after the sailings were increased but the cost of overtime went up.

The new reduced sailing schedule is designed to meet peak needs and also to reduce working hours for employees to a straight 7½-hour shift, said Gallagher.

The winter schedule comes into effect in 10 days and will stay in effect until May 20, 1976.

On the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run six sailings will be eliminated from Monday to Thursday, with no service at 8 a.m., 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

This reduced schedule is the same as the winter service in effect in 1973.

Kissinger Conduct 'Shocking'

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The house select intelligence committee's final report on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will condemn him for conduct "much more shocking than the things I've examined within the CIA structure," says Rep. James V. Stanton, Dem—Ohio.

Stanton, who has no doubt the report will explode into a major issue in the upcoming presidential campaign, said the report — among other things — would reveal instances "where the secretary either misled or totally deceived congress."

"I think we're going to show examples of where he had information and could have acted with reasonable prudence to prevent certain events from occurring and he didn't allow the free flow of information to occur when it was within his power," Stanton said in a Washington interview published today by the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Two publicized examples of Kissinger's withholding or misusing vital information were negotiations involving Vietnam and Cyprus, according to Stanton, who refused to specify other accusations against Kissinger.

Stanton said he was bound by the committee's agreement with the Ford administration not to disclose details at this time.

B.C. Fed Alters Tack, IWA, Pulpmen on Job

A tentative agreement between B.C. forest companies and 29,000 IWA members, an about-face by the B.C. Federation of Labor and a recommendation that 13,000 striking pulp workers get back on the job will soon have the province's major industry back in business.

Labor federation President Len Guy earlier said the back-to-work legislation should be fought in any possible way, but that stance was changed Thursday when the federation urged workers to return to work and comply with the bill.

The International Woodworkers of America agreement was reached Thursday evening, seconds before the industry and its major union would have felt the effects of the government's sweeping back-to-work legislation.

Shortly before the announcement of the tentative IWA settlement, leaders of B.C.'s two pulp unions said they are recommending that their members vote to comply with the government order and return to the jobs they left July 16 when the pulp strike began. There is little chance the pulp workers will vote against the recommendation.

However there were reports that pulp union pickets were still up today in Port Mellon and scattered points in the interior.

IWA coast locals are now setting up ratification meetings, but will return to work in the meantime.

Details of the IWA contract package have not been released, but it is believed the settlement sticks closely to recommendations made in the report by special mediator Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon.

It is believed the settlement includes a $1.55 an hour wage increase over the two years, improvements in the cost-of-living adjustment clause in the second year of the contract, changes in pension plan provisions and weekly indemnity payments to sick workers.

The IWA was not on strike, but most of its members were off work because of pulp picket lines and poor market conditions.

Had the union not settled before the deadline of about 5:35 p.m. Thursday, provisions in the back-to-work bill for retroactive pay and no strike or lockout for 90 days would have applied.

The pulp unions' recommendation to return to work avoids a confrontation be-

Postal Workers To Get Report

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Post office administrators are sending local offices what they say is a complete summary of a conciliation report dealing with a contract dispute in the hopes that union members will reject a request from their leaders for strike authorization, a government spokesman said today.

The new summary, which will be available on request through post offices to the 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, differs from attempts by the government officials to correct "misleading" information sent by the union, he added.

Union leaders have begun a membership vote which should be complete by early next week. They are asking postal workers to give them a strike mandate unless the government accepts something close to their demands in contract talks.

If talks fail, there could be a strike by the latter part of next week if the members back their leaders.

The members have been asked to vote on the strike mandate, not the conciliation report prepared by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court.

"We want them to know what has been offered in the conciliation report before they throw it out and give the union leaders a strike mandate," the spokesman said. The government hopes the rank and file will not back a strike.

Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey will be in Victoria later today to speak to the annual convention of Canadian Postmasters Association at the Empress Hotel.

Mackasey will also hold a press conference on the labor troubles in the post office.

Mackasey said Thursday the government has a contingency plan to deliver pension and other benefit cheques in the event of a national postal strike.

"As long as I am postmaster general, no strike will interfere with the delivery of social benefit cheques," he said.

Meanwhile in Winnipeg, about 350 postal workers gave their national president a hearty round of applause Thursday night as he urged them to support a union strike vote.

Joe Davidson, president of the 22,000-member union, told the men: "Until we get what we want, we intend to fight like hell with this government"

BARRETT BOMB THREAT

VANDERHOOF (CP) — Two telephoned bomb threats were made Thursday against a school where Premier Barrett spoke.

The first threat against the Nechako Senior Secondary School was made during the day, causing some 600 students to be evacuated. A second threat was made before the premier spoke in the evening.

Police searched the building both times but no bomb was found.

RCMP in Vanderhoof refused to confirm or deny that a bomb threat had been made.

In the first part of the premier's fall tour there were signs of increased security after some threats were made against him but so far during the northern swing of his tour there has been little sign of RCMP protection.

Barrett was informed of the threat but he gave his address to 500 people in the school gymnasium, with no disturbance except for one heckler.

Canada Gearing For Austerity

ture, said the source, but the chairmanship likely would go to someone with broader experience in general economics.

Cabinet had been expected to complete its economic package by Thursday afternoon, but detailed work now is expected to go into the weekend. "We're refining it all the time—presentation, substance," said the prime minister.

Mr. Macdonald, while calling the proposed measures "unprecedented," would offer few details, and would not say whether there will be actual price and wage controls, or what other steps may be taken to wrestle down inflation.

However, Mr. Trudeau made it clear the cabinet proposals won't necessarily include the final details. His Monday meeting with the premiers, to be held at 24 Sussex Drive, would be a consultative session, not a mere briefing. "I'll be consulting them," he said. "There will still be room for amendments after Monday."

And he said business and labor groups also would be given an opportunity to influence the measures.

By holding the federal-provincial meeting on Thanksgiving Day, and scheduling a nationwide television broadcast amid mounting excitement of what may lie ahead, the government appears ready to unveil its proposals with the dramatic impact which some economists say is necessary in the fight against "inflationary psychology."

A massive publicity campaign is expected to follow the introduction of federal legislation. This could involve as many as 175 persons working out of the finance department, says one official.

However, the provinces may be faced with massive campaigns of their own, since many of the front-line inflationary problems come under their jurisdiction. These include rents, housing prices, professional fees, utility prices, hospital costs and education.

Some opposition party officials are privately critical of what they term a huge public relations campaign for the prime minister's Monday night statement but because of the delicacy of the over-riding problem, little is being said publicly.

At least one provincial official was critical of the fact that Mr. Trudeau's invitation to his premiers was issued for Monday and there had been "no serious consultation" about alternate dates.

But federal spokesmen say there was no alternative and that Thanksgiving Day was not selected for any dramatic impact.

They say that the measures are highly complex and since the prime minister will not be able to cover all details in his broadcast, individuals and industries won't have all the answers about the effects. "But everything will be revealed Tuesday in the Commons," said one.

"If the meeting with the premiers were held much before Tuesday there would be different details leaking and no one would know where they stood."

Pulpmen Going Back to Work

tween the labor movement and NDP government.

Art Gruntman of the Canadian Paperworkers Union said representatives of the 22 striking locals voted only 51.6 per cent in favor of returning to work and made the recommendation with "great reluctance."

Pulp Paper and Woodworkers of Canada leader Reg Ginn said the results of his union's vote on the recommendation should be known by later today, but said he expected the membership to go along with the recommendation.

The B.C. Federation of Labor also made an about-face on its position on Bill 146.

"The Barrett government has deliberately created a situation in which the union directly involved has no effective alternative but to return to work and to continue to fight in other ways," Guy said.

Those "other ways" could include federation support for a unionist candidate who runs in the next provincial election against any NDP MLA who voted for the bill. Only three government MLAs opposed the order.

PPWC leader Ginn said his union had decided originally to defy the legislation, but "we would have been out along," he said and that would have been foolhardy.

Ginn said the union was forced to "back off" and that he was unhappy that labor leaders did not rise up and fight the legislation.

Both Ginn and Gruntman said they expected to be back at the bargaining table in about two weeks, but neither seemed confident of the outcome of bargaining and another round of stormy confrontation seems inevitable.

Industry chief Don Lanskail said Friday the IWA settlement would form the basis for the pulp unions' negotiations, but Ginn said the idea was "a fallacy."

"I don't know what they've negotiated, but if they sold cheap it might have an effect on us. We're going all out. We've got 90 days with a possible 14-day extension and we're going to do our darndest to get a half decent package for our members," Ginn said.

While the 29,000 coastal IWA members have a tentative settlement, the 6,000 southern interior IWA workers have "a lot of talking to do" before a settlement is reached there, IWA spokesman Wyman Trineer said.

Interior IWA locals normally follow the coastal settlement, but it is believed they want some changes made in the package.

Meanwhile, problems with pulp mill start-ups are something the companies are "going to have to live with", Labor Minister Bill King said this morning.

King said there was some problem Thursday because some pulp companies said they couldn't get back to full production immediately.

But he said, the law says everyone working before strikes must be called back and "if they can't use everybody at first that's something they will have to live with as a price for not making collective bargaining work."

"My concern is that everyone returns to work immediately," he said.

As far as enforcing the law, King said it would be a matter of investigating any complaints that come in and so far there have been no complaints so as far as he is concerned, he assumes all sides have complied with the law.

King said any complaints will be referred to the attorney-general's department for investigation.

The labor minister Thursday congratulated the IWA and the forest industry on their "maturity through these tough negotiations.

"They have demonstrated that the collective bargaining system can work. They have demonstrated responsibility to their members and to the province of British Columbia," he said.

Victorians Charged In Drug Case

Four Victorians were charged in provincial court Thursday after Vancouver Island drug squads seized $5,000 worth of hashish on Tuesday.

Charged with conspiracy to traffic are Kenneth Joseph Witzaney, 26, of 2807 Sooke Lake Rd.; Patrick Joseph McLoughlin, 27, of Shawnigan Lake; and Michael James Ballantyne, 23, of 3215 Island View. All were released on $1,500 bail.

Karen Louise Witzaney, 27, wife of Kenneth, was charged with trafficking and had bail set at $2,500.

The men were remanded to Oct. 16 to get counsel, and the woman appeared again today and was remanded to Oct. 17 for election of trial method.

FERRY CUTBACK

On Fridays and Sundays there will be four sailings eliminated — 8 a.m., 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m. And on Saturdays there will be hourly service in the mornings shifting to two-hour service in the afternoon with a final ferry from each side at 9 p.m.

The weekend schedule is reduced from previous winter operations but Gallagher said the ferries were not being used to capacity Friday and Sunday mornings or Saturday afternoons.

Peter Marshall, spokesman for 500 ferry officers within the B.C. Government Employees Union, said he was disturbed by the cutback in services and said it was a false economy move because employees will only be able to work one round trip instead of two.

Gallagher said the employees will do maintenance and cleaning chores, training programs and regular drill during the time they are not working on a ferry run.

He said the latest contract with the ferry workers calls on the government to reduce working schedules to 7½ hours wherever possible and the ferry authority is trying to do that.

Additional sailings will be added on statutary holidays and long weekends and hourly service will be set up during the Christmas and Easter holidays, he said.

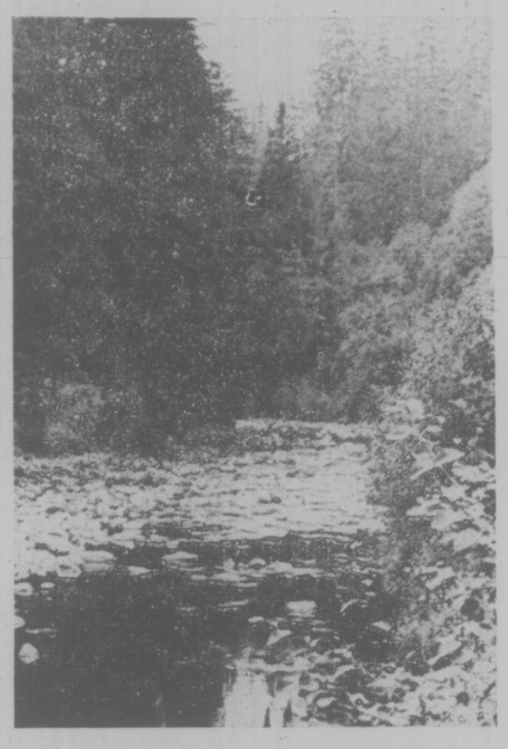
B.C. Land Potential Varied

Unlike many areas of North America, British Columbia still has much unalienated public land and people can still decide how they want to use it, Robert Ahrens, associate deputy minister of the department of recreation and conservation, said Thursday.

"We are in a position of relative advantage in that we still have land-use options open to us no longer available to many jurisdictions in North America," he told members of the northwest chapter of the Association of Interpretive Naturalists.

"Thus we still hope to add to our 10 million acres of parks, recreation areas, wilderness conservancies and ecological reserves which now take in about four per cent of our land area."

He observed that the provincial system of preserves has the greatest variety of climates, soils, plants, animals and topographic conditions in Canada.



PARKS AROUND US

Loss Creek Wizardry

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

There was something enchanting and mysterious about Loss Creek provincial park when we passed through the area 20 years ago.

We felt as if some wizard had opened our eyes to sights and sounds seldom seen and heard by man.

It was not a park then, but part of a virgin forest. In earlier years, it was used as a stop-over place, halfway between Jordan River and Port Renfrew by linesmen repairing the telegraph line on the West Coast Trail.

When we arrived at the river on our way to Port Renfrew, we were greeted by Stellar blue jays. Kingfishers seemed to be everywhere. A great horned owl watched us as we munched on salmon berries by the creek.

There was something about the river that made us stop and listen. It bubbled with life and seemed to sing as it ran and cascaded wildly to the sea. It was then not more than 30 feet wide. The creek now in places is more than 130 feet in width, the result of erosion caused by logging of the watershed.

Light seemed to radiate from the trees and sometime we glimpsed the colors of the rainbow in the sparkling water. The place seemed to vibrate with energy.

Later, when we told our experience to an old Indian at Port Renfrew, he smiled knowingly.

"You were possessed by the spirit of Sanchas," he explained.

"But who is Sanchas?"

"The guardian spirit of the woods, rivers, birds and animals," he replied.

Much has changed since then, but the dark area still retains some of its beauty. It's a restful place — ideal for picnics on warm, sunny days.

Nature Programs Drew 300,000

Nature is becoming a big attraction, a parks branch official says.

About 300,000 people took advantage of nature programs in provincial parks this year, Kerry Joy, chief of the parks branch nature division, told the annual conference of the northwest chapter, Association of Interpretive Naturalists, at the Provincial Museum Thursday.

Ted Underhill, who became the first permanent provincial park naturalist in 1958, recalled that when the nature programs were first initiated, many people didn't know what a naturalist was.

"Today when people arrive at our provincial parks, the first thing many do is to seek out our naturalists and to participate in our programs," he said. "We receive thousands of letters from appreciative people."

He said many of the benefits from nature interpretive programs are intangible.

"We hope they create an environmental awareness and develop a preservation attitude," he said. "Our aim is to help visitors understand and enjoy parks more."

He said the programs have also helped to reduce vandalism in parks.

Underhill now is in charge of supplying the materials and displays for the park nature programs.

Ida DeKelver of Clearwater said the main reason people are becoming aware of nature is because their environment is being continually threatened.

She observed that in her districts the creeks were clear and contained fish and the woods and marshes abounded with many forms of wildlife.

"Then they logged the watershed and marshes," she said. "We no longer have clear creeks and fish and the streams dry out in summer."

She said people in the area plan to form a natural history society to protect and to save the little bits of natural environment left in the district.

No Reason For Pet Ban

The provincial parks branch is receiving an increasing number of requests to ban pets in parks.

But George Trachuk, assistant director of parks operations, sees no reason to go that far unless the situation gets worse.

"The problem appears to be mainly confined to a few parks," he said. "Dogs are allowed to roam at will and we receive complaints they relieve themselves on tents. People also bring cats and sometime can't find them when they return home. They are left in the park and go wild."

He observed that under park regulations, dogs must be leashed and for sanitary reasons are not allowed on beaches.

Another Symptom for Ottawa

Rejection of a concilation report by postal union leaders is symptomatic of the madness that is driving inflation to new heights in this country. Recommended raises in the report would give postal workers an immediate $1 per hour raise and provide retroactive annual increases of between $1,300 and $1,400. Over a 30-month contract there would have been a $1.70 per hour increase. The immediate 20 per cent increase is far more than the 13.9 per cent annual inflation rate, yet the postal unions now will seek a strike mandate. Inside postal workers are demanding an unbelievable increase of $3.26 per hour.

While the sledgehammer legislation that Premier Dave Barrett's administration brought in Tuesday makes anyone living in a democracy uneasy, it may be necessary to save the principles it compromises in the short term. That too, is an uncomfortable argument. But the alternative of economic anarchy and boundless inflation is even more unpalatable. The country needs a breathing space. If it must be legislated, then so be it. Perhaps government intervention in management-labor disputes is the last recourse of exhausted minds.

From all reports Ottawa's anti-inflation plan stops short of wage and price controls. A surtax on large wage increases, a tribunal to monitor price hikes are interesting theories. But this government has a history of pulling its punches and setting up toothless legislation that is merely a facade to appease the public.

Most of the country's premiers will go along with any proposals Ottawa has to offer, especially after the vacuum of the last three years. The problem may well be that the provinces will have to fight for more stringent measures from the senior government. While the premiers can tinker, setting good examples in their own jurisdictions, only the federal government can deal meaningfully with inflation. It was just a few weeks ago that Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey talked of closing the post office for two or three months in the event of a strike. Mackasey is taking the government's case directly to the postal workers because employees are not being allowed by their union to vote on the federal proposals — another insane facet of this dispute. And planned leaks from Ottawa on just how tough the government is going to get are escalating, subtle drum-beating before the prime minister unveils his plans Monday.

But the Trudeau administration has to do more than appear earnest now. It is interesting to note that a provincial NDP administration was the first Canadian regime at any level to act decisively, against its party principles, in the interest of plain and simple leadership. The federal Liberals should be embarrassed.

Sickening Sick Leave

A society with such a sour view of human nature that it offers bribes to employees, above and beyond salaries, just so they will come to work on a regular basis, should take a long look at itself. Yet we read that six former city hall employees, who have been transferred to provincial jurisdiction, will receive $26,000 in accumulated sick leave from the city. This situation is not unique to Victoria. British Columbia Institute of Technology employees may bank up to 250 days sick leave or take 40 per cent of it off prior to retirement. Alternatively, 40 per cent of the accrued sum can be taken in cash on retirement.

In essence, this means we are paying people for not being ill. Reading between the lines, the system says, if you come to work on the days you might ordinarily slough off, we will give you a reward.

This came through in spades when city manager Jim Bramley explained to reporters that the arrangement was made some years ago to deter people from staying away from work who were on the borderline of healthy and sick. He went on to say the system only worked well until a person had put in his 10-year qualifying period on city staff. Banking sick leave or taking the cash equivalent on leaving municipal employment for any reason is embedded in the city's collective agreements with police, firefighters, inside and outside employees.

Perhaps the city is just being realistic, hedging its bets in a society with increasingly fragmented allegiances. But are we to pay people extra in order that they will fulfil their salary contract? The answer is apparently "yes." One could go on talk about "pride in work" or the Protestant work ethic, but they have become dimly remembered phrases in the mind of an older generation. The current generation, with some justification, laughs or sneers at such sentiments as a naive myth perpetrated by callous employers on an ignorant work force. Yet nothing positive has replaced the old jingoism.

And without pride, professionalism, honesty or integrity, the individual, not to mention society, becomes lethargic, apathetic and indifferent. In cynical fashion the employees insist on the inclusion of banking sick leave. In equally cynical fashion the employer accepts. Both sides have exchanged metaphorical winks. The human spirit is crushed a little more.

Freedom of the Press

Editor and Publisher, the trade magazine of the newspaper business in North America, informs its readers in a recent issue that the committee on government relations of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association met two days last month with U.S. government officials to discuss a wide range of freedom of the press issues, including revision of the criminal code and criminal justice information legislation.

"The meetings were closed to press coverage, ANPA told an E&P reporter, to allow free roundtable discussion by senators."

Tell us again, senators and publishers, about the public's right to know and how Watergate was exposed and corruption checked by a vigorous and probing American press?

Rock Candy Castle

It can no longer be said that bankers and ergo, banks, are dull and sobersided. Instead, judging by the Bank of Commerce at Fort and Government Street they have become altogether lunatic. With Jack Frost hues, borrowed perhaps from the stripes on Hydro buses, they have created a comic-opera palace of orange and yellow, an appropriate setting for balcony love duets and Neapolitan sword fights.

Who could have guessed that locked inside the grey heads of the borrowers and lenders of Government Street there slumber secret desires of carnival and coquetry? Long suppressed by modesty and self effacement the true nature of these tradition-ridden gentlemen could no longer be contained. What struggling, what soul-searching must have preceded the decision to come out of the board room. To the gentlemen's credit, the decision, once taken, was whole-heartedly embraced.

Subtlety, nuance, dignity, discretion, all were cast aside. If McDonalds and the Colonel could do it, then, by God, the Bank of Commerce could do it.

Like the breathless 13-year-old finally allowed into her mother's make-up we can pardon the gentlemen for their lack of expertise and embarrassing excess of color.

Cold water can restore the face, but it will take a lot of wet Victoria winters to subdue the facade of the rock candy castle on the corner of Government and Fort.—Thos. Palfey, 3158 Jackson Street.

Influence Peddling

Watching the television series Shoulder to Shoulder on Channel 9 about the suffragettes, it is interesting to speculate as to why 50 years later so few women become members of parliament. Laws, as they complained then, are still largely mansmade or are they?

Perhaps women sensed intinctively that if they decended into the bear pit of politics they might lose their influence over men. Since time immemorial men have been influenced by women within the family and society. Men have been inspired under women leaders from Boadicea to Queen Victoria.

It is also interesting to speculate on what people will be saying 50 years hence about women's lib. Perhaps in the same way women will then instinctively ask ligerated from what? Liberated from their age-old ability to influence men? — H. S. Thuillier, 2424 Beach Drive.

It Seems Nothing Much Is in the Way of the Supertankers

By FRANK RUTTER

WASHINGTON — Once in a while Canadian government leaders remember to burp their protests about the indigestible prospect of tankers from Alaska spilling their oil cargoes on the beautiful beaches of British Columbia.

So an energetic and solicitous U.S. government official recently went out to the west coast to see, for himself what was happening to combat the great tanker threat.

His conclusion — the tankers will go exactly where originally intended to unload their oil at Cherry Point, Ferndale and Anacortes in Washington state.

This is despite the protests — most recently from Donald Macdonald, who also went to have a look during his last days as Canada's energy minister, and in Washington from Canadian Ambassador Jack H. Warren, carrying on the noble tradition of Mitchell Sharp who got up in parliament to declaim in Churchillian tones that "we have only just begun to fight" after the Alaska pipeline battle had been lost.

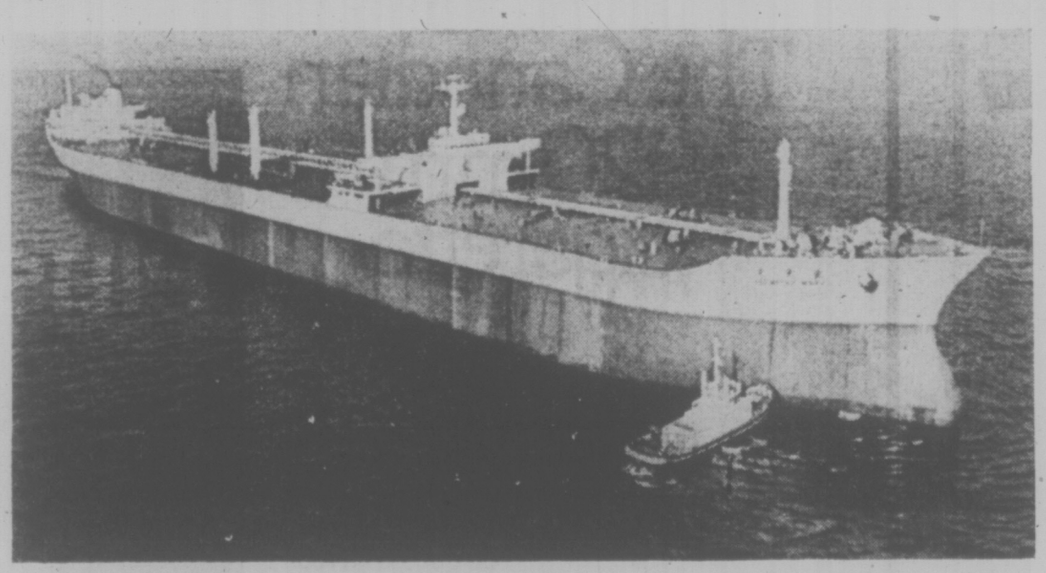
And it is also despite the flotilla of schemes that have been floated during the past nine months for alternative tanker terminals on the west coast — no less than nine of them at last count, none more than a paper port.

Among these are ideas for terminals at Prince Rupert and Point Roberts, Port Angeles, Clallam Bay, Ancortes, Burrows Bay, and various locations around the Olympic peninsula and in the San Juan Islands on the Washington state side.

These are mixed up with a number of pipeline schemes to get Alaska oil to other parts of the United States.

The muddle is compounded by the political situation both in the northwest and in Washington.

Neither B.C. nor Washington state leaders profess eagerness to welcome increased tanker traffic in the confined waters of the strait of Juan de Fuca,



Tankers like this Japanese giant in two years will start steaming down the coast, three a week

Georgia Strait, Rosario Strait or Puget Sound.

But neither would they turn up their noses at a secure supply of oil. Then there is the national interest — of both nations — to be considered, meaning how best to juggle limited resources to help the most people.

There is also the political interest which dictates that Premier David Barrett must say "never" to B.C. getting oil from Alaska, and that governor Daniel Evans must say Washington state will not become the nation's tanker terminal.

Both local administrations are testing the power of their jurisdiction over water traffic. In Washington state this has been through Gov. Evans' legislative package, only part of which has been announced at the beginning of the year but only partly introduced.

According to federal scouts, the governor isn't even going to try to get it through the legislature in Olympia this year while he is already facing a court challenge from the Atlantic Richfield oil company on traffic rules.

In B.C., the Americans are interested in the Great Oil Refinery Mystery and a provincial government study on possible power to regulate marine activities in Georgia Strait.

As for the refinery, U.S. officials have concluded that the government wants to built it at Point Roberts, but dare not, so it will be located at Merritt, B.C. close to the Trans-Mountain pipeline, which could supply oil either from Alberta or from Alaska landed at the coast.

As envisioned by both countries, the treaty would include two main provisions — assured security of energy supplies moving through pipelines and guarantees against discriminatory taxes or tariffs.

Ironically, as the negotiators were meeting, a U.S. official visiting Ottawa was predicting that they would reach agreement, according to news reports received here. Clement Malin, deputy assistant director of the U.S. Federal Energy Administration, who sat in at previous meetings, was reported as describing the Sept. 25 session as "final."

When and if an agreement is reached, the draft of the treaty will be initialled by negotiators, then referred to the two governments.

In the U.S., the draft treaty would be circulated among key agencies before being sent to the senate for ratification.

One reason for efforts to speed the negotiating process was the fear that either the U.S. congress or government might decide against the Mackenzie Valley project and approve an all-Alaska pipeline without a clear indication that a treaty was near approval.

U.S. gas shortages in the coming winter are expected to increase pressure for an early decision on the route for an Arctic pipeline and even if it were not specifically mentioned, the Mackenzie Valley route would gain credibility through a treaty.

Moves to facilitate a supply from Alaska have already been made both by the federal governments in Washington and Ottawa, and by members of congress, such as Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, whose proposed legislative mandate to President Gerald Ford for oil swap negotiations suggests landing up to 20 per cent of the oil from the trans-Alaska pipeline at a terminal "well north of Vancouver," presumably Prince Rupert.

The governments' contribution consists of letters to major oil companies suggesting they get together to work out swaps which will keep some Canadian oil flowing to the "northern tier" refineries in states such as Minnesota.

However, the federal governments, despite the recent public statements of Messrs. Macdonald and Warren, have done nothing recently about determining the landing point for Alaska oil.

The last discussion among officials took place in January, after which both Ottawa and Washington relaxed in the hope that the problem could be solved by Evans, who was then considering a state-backed scheme to build a tanker terminal at or near Port Angeles, thus avoiding more hazardous, narrow, waters leading to the refineries of Arco, Shell Mobil and Texaco which are located at Cherry Point, Ferndale and Anacortes.

But the Evans scheme has gone no farther. It is opposed by the oil companies because of the expense of building a pipeline from Port Angeles across Puget Sound to the refineries.

So it is now assumed by U.S. federal officials in energy and regulatory agencies that the Alaska oil will be landed at the refineries. It could hardly be otherwise, because the first oil from the trans-Alaska pipeline will be arriving in less than two years and no alternative is under construction.

"The more that comes in to these refineries, the harder it will be to switch terminals," says the U.S. official who personally inspected the area.

He added that it was his personal opinion that "nobody is facing up to the problems."

One of the problems is that the U.S. has not yet decided what to do with all its Alaska oil. The two million barrels a day capacity of the Alaska pipeline is more than is needed in the Pacific northwest.

The obvious market for the surplus is the U.S. midwest — some of it going into B.C., displacing Alberta supplies which would then become available to eastern Canada or the U.S.

There's one alternative which the Federal Energy Administration foresees. That's another pipeline out of Alaska, one which could connect with a Canadian oil pipeline down the Mackenzie Valley sometime in the 1990s.

That would take pressure off the west coast by avoiding expansion of tanker terminals.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of October 10, 1915

SEATTLE — War's mailed fist has reached far across Europe, across the Atlantic and North America into the far north of the territory of Alaska to find new food for the guns. This time it is dogs and 106 of Alaska's finest will be drawn into the battle zone in France. The steamship Senator brought the dogs from Nome this week, most of them malemutes. They are to be used in the French alpine service, dragging supplies over the snow, tugging machine guns into fastnesses that command the passes.

Smith Whips Up Rhodesia's Beleaguered Whites

By DAVID MARTIN

SALISBURY — Trapped between the aspirations of six million Africans and external pressures to end the decade long constitutional deadlock, Rhodesia's 275,000 whites are today both bewildered and intransigent.

They remain luxuriously cocooned from life's realities; a truly lost white tribe, staging their own final and disastrous Mad Hatter's tea party on the wrong side of the twentieth century looking glass.

They have grown used to being rebels against the British crown. Yet the nostalgia for yesteryear remains a vital part of their make-up.

In Salisbury last month I watched them take one of their increasingly frequent trips back into white Rhodesia's very short history. Bemused African construction workers looked on from a nearby building site as the president, Clifford Dupont, Ian Smith and his cabinet, all dressed in dark suits, and their womenfolk in printed floral garden party dresses, remembered the first pioneer column to reach the city in 1890.

Pioneer Day is a unique occasion, for on this one day each year the Union Jack is officially flown. And, as if to add a special touch of cynicism to the proceedings, two African buglers of the Rhodesian African Rifles played the last post for the dead whites; the first African nationalist who died fighting the settlers having long since been erased from the official history.

It is the war of today and tomorrow that now really concerns the white Rhodesians. Amidst much sabre rattling and bravado Smith's government is whipping the whites onto a war footing.

In their bars and clubs, the whites talk about the "Sharp End" — a Rhodesian euphemism for the north-east where security forces are conducting a major offensive against fewer than 300 nationalist guerrillas who for ten months have been cut off from their external rear bases and supply routes.

The guerrillas are referred to as "terrs," an abbreviation for terrorists, and the Africans are simply "Afs" to the farmers in the north-east Centenary district who, relatively secure behind their wire fences, sandbags and arc lamps, depict white Rhodesia's growing siege mentality.

What former Central African Federation Prime Minister, Sir Roy Welensky, describes as "an iron curtain" has descended on the media. Selected reporters have been classified as "war correspondents," submitting their stories for scrutiny to the censor after conducted tours of the "Sharp End."

The recently published second edition of the glossy magazine Fighting Forces of Rhodesia recalls the Mazoe patrol and Matabele rebellion, both of 1896, and the part Rhodesian (whites only) soldiers and airmen played in World War II. On the cover is a typically blood and thunder Churchillian quotation, part of which reads, "In defeat: defiance."

Early this month when Corporal Kelvin Storey became the 73rd member of the security forces to be killed in action, his death elicited 35 notices of sympathy from friends and relatives in the Rhodesian Herald. In contrast Private Bosopayi Calestino, an African soldier killed in action, drew only five.

Yet behind the facade very visible cracks are appearing in the white mask. Military service is hitting hard: reservists can be called up two or three times a year for 35 days at a time, which seriously affects farmers and businesses.

This month the call-up net has been extended, taking in everyone between 25 and 38. Even before that, the predicted exodus this year, based on government figures, was 10,000, almost all of whom would have been liable for service.

While Rhodesian statistics show that in the first seven months of this year new arrivals, over half of them Portuguese from Angola and Mozambique, exceeded departures, the point is that immigrants are not liable for military service for two years after their arrival.

(Until August, they could be called up only after five years in Rhodesia.)

The Rhodesians know that if there is not a negotiated settlement they will face a much larger and more co-ordinated guerrilla war next year. They cling to the belief that if that occurs white South Africans will force their Prime Minister, John Vorster, to send troops and armaments to their defence.

The evidence, however, suggests that Vorster will leave well alone, and this would be a crippling blow to white Rhodesian morale. If it occurred it would have serious repercussions. Smith admitted in a recent interview. But even so they would fight as a matter of principle, he insisted.

Of greater immediate concern than the war is the state of the economy. Since the imposition of sanctions, statistics such as foreign reserves have been a closely guarded secret but it is now clear that the world economic recession, inflation and increased oil prices are biting deep into an economy that has survived sanctions with relative ease.

Foreign exchange is strictly allocated and shortages of vital items, including farm implements, are becoming increasingly evident. A small currency black market exists and the government estimates that since UDI in November 1965 around $100 million has been illegally exported, mainly through businessmen over invoicing.

The tobacco farmers, more than any other sector, illustrate Rhodesia's vulnerability. At UDI there were 3,600. Today they number only 1,600 and opposition Centre Party leader, Patrick Bashford, estimates that 600 of these are on the verge of bankruptcy.

This year the farmers had expected an average price per kilo of tobacco of one Rhodesian dollar (84 pence). But instead the average was around 70 cents (59 pence).

Even among hardline members of the Rhodesian Front one detects clearly qualified support for Smith today. As the "wind of change" gathers its second breath and gusts icily on them from across the Zambezi River, the white Rhodesians are increasingly withdrawing into their laager because they have nowhere else to run.

But they lack the resilience of the pioneers they annually remember. Unity among the warring nationalists, third party guarantees for the pensions and property of whites, and a clear statement from Vorster that he would not send in troops to support them, would all serve to break wavering morale and increase pressure on Smith to reach a settlement saving something from the cul-de-sac he led his country into 10 years ago.

Idle supertankers in mothballs in Norwegian port

TANKERS TO TAKE WATER TO ARABIA?

THE GERMAN TRIBUNE

Roughly a quarter of the world's tanker tonnage is currently laid up in quiet backwaters or disused harbour basins. Owners are hoping against hope that business will be brisker next spring, say.

But the tonnage available and under construction is so far in excess of demand that the prospects are viewed with unremitting gloom by shipowners everywhere.

New tankers are being launched one after another, only to go straight into mothballs.

So far a solution to this dilemma has failed to materialize. The Bonn government subsidized West German owners to the tune of fifteen per cent with the aim of boosting domestic tanker tonnage.

Essberger, Oldendorff and Hapag were each induced to commission two supertankers. All six are, to all intents and purposes, redundant. The federal government has as little idea what to do as anyone else.

Hass-Ulrich Klein, a Wiesbaden engineer, has come up with a simple but striking proposal that might yet save the day.

The emirates on the Persian Gulf have enormous reserves of oil and little or no water, Klein argues. What better way could there be of getting redundant tankers back into business than converting them from oil to water tankers?

River water is available in sufficient quantities within striking distance of the water-starved Middle East, the Wiesbaden engineer notes. There are, for instance, the Nile and Indus deltas.

All the tankers would need to do would be to sail to the estuaries, take on river water and process and purify it on board as they sail to their destinations.

Purified chemically and with the aid of carbon and ozone, the water would then be piped to the recipients — either directly into the mains system or into overground or subterranean tanks and reservoirs.

The oil exporters' water requirements are enormous, Klein claims. Saudi Arabia, for instance, plans to invest millions in desalination equipment.

Desalination is a matter of evaporation and condensation, yet even though the oil exporters have the power required at their doorsteps, as it were, the cost of desalinated water would amount to thirty per cent more than the cost of shipping water in and processing it on board tankers.

Negotiations with interested countries are in progress. Both Saudi Arabia and Iran are reported to have shown interest in the proposal.

TOUGH YEARS IN OPPOSITION

Strachan: 23 Years of Service

THE PROVINCE
An Editorial

It's easy for critics of the NDP to say that Bob Strachan should indeed have been eased out of the cabinet, and easy to criticize his appointment as B.C.'s agent-general in London. Which makes it all too easy to forget what Mr. Strachan did during his career.

From 1956 through 1969, Mr. Strachan doggedly held a job that few men would have stayed with. He led the Opposition in a House dominated by W. A. C. Bennett, who treated the Opposition as an unwarranted interference with his grand plans for B.C.

The Opposition was denied a Hansard, was denied opportunity to give anything but a delayed and cursory examination to Mr. Bennett's finances, and was denied the resources to carry out its role as a defender of the public's interest. Rules of the House were interpreted any way the government wished. The Opposition was obstructed, slapped down, insulted and ignored. It was a time, as Mr. Strachan once observed, of genuine bitterness and rancor.

Mr. Strachan never gave up. He accepted a work load that looked impossible, under arduous conditions, and voluntarily increased that work load. He stayed with it despite agonizing frustration and attempts to humiliate him.

Mr. Strachan didn't rely on public relations men to show him his job, he designed it. He didn't allow pundits and commentators to be the ones reciting the litany of governmental faults and failures, he worked long hours and long weeks for 13 years to do the job himself. Opposition members today complain, rightly, that they are poorly treated by the government; but the conditions Mr. Strachan had to endure for 13 years were at times beyond belief.

STRACHAN
. . . heavy workload

After he stepped down as NDP leader (a revolt of Young Turks in the party was a factor) Mr. Strachan seriously thought of leaving politics. But he left his money where his mouth was and carried on. His new hope was that the NDP would form a government and that he would be named finance minister.

Instead, Premier Dave Barrett named him transport minister. The job combined a money-losing ferry service and the requirement that he attempt to set up a giant auto insurance company, offering a brand-new program, in a matter of months — with no help from the private insurance industry. The result was a series of field days for the Opposition, and Mr. Strachan's departure from the cabinet. He accepted the end with apparent grace, after 23 years of service to public and party.

Mr. Strachan deserves thanks for the years of dedicated service that he gave to the people of B.C., and the many sacrifices he made. His one regret, if he has one, should be that he had to spend the last three years of his political life under the burden of a workload that was too much for any one man.

The Way It All Began

russell baker

So. Something must be written about the Bicentennial, eh? Why? Why? Why?

Thomas Jefferson and George Washington sat silently in a Philadelphia drawing room waiting for Benjamin Franklin. It was 10:30 p.m. and George Washington, who had eaten too much apple pandowdy at dinner, was suffering the distress of acid indigestion.

He was wishing someone would invent a powder that gave fast, fast, fast relief, but it was still only 1775, and since acid indigestion hadn't yet been discovered, Washington thought he was probably having a heart attack. It wasn't easy living in the 18th century, Washington reflected. Dentistry still in the Dark Ages. No football on television. Heart attacks after dinner every night of the week. Finally, to relieve the silence, Washington addressed Jefferson, who he thought was Button Gwinnett. "Do you often have an after-dinner heart attack, Button?" he asked.

"I am sorry, sir," said Jefferson, who was awed at being in the presence of the Father of His Country and genuinely sorry about having to sound like an ignoramus, "but I do not know what an after-dinner heart-attack button is, sir."

Washington scowled at Jefferson. An impertinent lout, Washington thought. What are the colonies coming to? Ask a man a civil question and he makes an asinine joke. Still, what could you expect of anybody named Button?

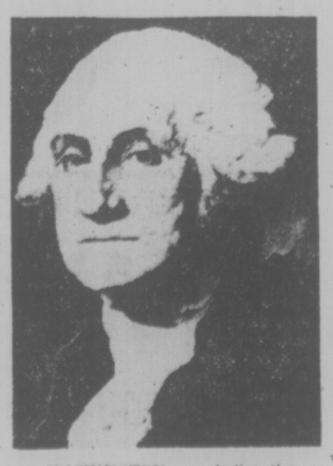
Jefferson, who wanted to make a smart impression, said, "I do know, however, about certain inalienable rights with which man is endowed by his Creator."

"Some other time," said Washington, who had heard footsteps outside. It would be Benjamin Franklin and John Adams, he reflected, come at his request to discuss the Declaration of Independence. Washington liked Franklin, but wished he wouldn't drink and pinch barmaids because it was bad for the image of the Revolution.

Like everybody from Massachusetts, Adams gave Washington a pain. He was one of those know-it-alls who thought it was a waste of time listening to anybody who hadn't gone to Harvard. Washington liked to get under his skin by humming "Boola Boola" whenever Adams was making a speech to the Continental Congress, but just now he would need Adams's approval for calling off the Revolution.

When the newcomers entered, Washington smelled the applejack on Franklin's breath and the superiority on Adams's education. Franklin noticed the pain on Washington's brow and immediately diagnosed a simple case of acid indigestion. He dissolved a spoonful of powder in a glass of water and urged Washington to drink. A moment later, Washington belched.

"You are a genius, Dr. Franklin," he said. "Tush," said Franklin, "merely a small discovery I stumbled on between my research on electricity and inventing the Franklin stove."



WASHINGTON . . . indigestion

"I'm not kidding," Washington said. "This powder can do more for mankind than any revolution ever made. If we could produce and market large quantities of it, we could wipe out after-dinner heart attack all over the world."

Adams gave Washington a look of such contempt that Washington began humming "Boola Boola." Franklin diplomatically suggested that it would be better to complete the Revolution before going into the bicarbonate-of-soda business, since otherwise the ruling tyrants in London would tax away all their profits.

Washington said, all right, it was the Revolution he wanted to talk about. He thought they were making a big mistake. Adams became furious. "If you don't want to be the Father of Our Country, step aside," he cried.

Jefferson interupted. "Are you saying," he asked Adams, "that you are going to become the Father of Our Country? What about me?"

"You!" said George Washington. "That's ridiculous. Can you imagine a great country governed from a capital called Button, D.C.?"

Franklin suggested everyone calm down and hear Washington's point. Washington put it succinctly. "If we go ahead with the revolt," he said, "200 years from now, our countrymen will have to celebrate it. Do you know what that means for us, gentlemen?"

Adams was ashen. "Boston will be overrun with tourists watching re-enactments of old battles." Franklin said. "The whole history of my sex life will be exhumed and displayed on television." Washington said, "Plastic replicas of my false teeth will be sold at every roadside frozen-custard stand in the country."

Jefferson saved the Revolution. "I will go it alone," he declared. The other three reluctantly joined him. Washington, because he couldn't bear to have his country fathered by a man named Button. Adams and Franklin, because they thought Jefferson was Gouverneur Morris and believed the country would be a laughingstock if its first leader was called President Gouverneur.

200-Mile U.S. Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill Thursday night to create a 200-mile national fisheries limit.

Passage over Ford administration opposition came by a vote of 208 to 101. Half the House membership had sponsored the bill in one form or another.

A similar measure has been cleared by a Senate committee, and that body has passed a strong limit bill in past sessions.

The limit, which applies to fisheries only, is a direct response to the activities of the Soviet bloc and Japanese fishing factory fleets the past decade in traditonal United States and Canadian coastal fishing grounds.

Suporters of the bill said super-efficient foreign trawlers had pushed such species as the haddock to commercial extinction. They said the foreign fleets were literally vacuuming the sea of protein.

The Ford administration opposed the bill, favoring a United Nations treaty on fisheries. Two UN conferences have failed to approach even rough agreement.

Under the bill, the limit would take effect next July 1.

Olympic Tickets Lagging

TORONTO (CP)—Tickets to the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal are selling so slowly across Canada that 20 of 22 Eaton's ticket outlets may be closed by the end of the month, according to the Globe and Mail.

In a Montreal dispatch, the newspaper quotes Al McKenzie, national ticket sales manager, as saying there are not enough customers to justify sales staff except in the Toronto and Montreal outlets.

The newspaper quotes McKenzie as saying Thursday that unless there is a dramatic change, dozens of sales staff will be laid off and Canadians wanting tickets will have to travel to Montreal or Toronto.

McKenzie told the newspaper 1.4 million tickets are available for Canadians at a cost of between $2 and $40 each in Phase Two of the selling scheme, which began Sept. 15 and runs until Dec. 30.

If the present trends continues, "we'll be lucky to sell 500,000," he said.

He said that of 800,000 tickets available to Canadians in Phase One between May 5 and June 30, only 490,000 were sold.

Cement Plant Closing

The cement plant at Bamberton on the west shore of Saanich Inlet will be shut down and dismantled in about three years and its 300 acres may be developed for housing or recreation.

George Ross, president of Ocean Cement Ltd., said from Vancouver today that the plant, a landmark on the inlet since it opened in 1912, will close at the same time a new cement plant opens at Tilbury Island in Delta.

The closing at Bamberton, mainly because "it is simply too old," will mean a loss of 170 jobs, but Ross said the company will help employees find jobs elsewhere in its operation and will co-operate with the Cement and Lime Gypsum Workers Union in providing such things as moving assistance.

Ocean Cement is a subsidiary of the giant conglomerate Genstar Ltd. and the parent company also announced that the capacity of the Delta plant under development has been raised from 750,000 tons a year to 1,100,000 tons. Cost of the plant will jump from $60 million to $90 million.

The Bamberton plant currently produces about 600,000 tons of cement annually. Just a year ago the company said it was going to spend $5.2 million there on improvements.

Ross said the company had been unable to find an assured supply of coal to fire the kilns in place of bunker fuel. But the Bamberton plant besides being old is also remote from the company's main market on the Lower Mainland.

He said today that quarrying of limestone at the Cobble Hill pit will also be discontinued but limited quarrying of special materials there may be continued for a time. About 35 people are employed in the quarrying operation.

He said he anticipates the plant will be dismantled after it closes, with the company salvaging what it can, and the property converted to other uses.

"Our people are thinking it would be a choice site for real estate, possibly housing or recreation." But the company has about three years to consider future uses, he said.

Lisbon Crackdown

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Portugal's ruling revolutionary council met in emergency session today and ordered a crackdown on extremists groups it said were trying "to destroy democratic order" in the country. It ran into immediate defiance by the Communists.

Owner, Tenants In Shouting Row

A meeting of tenants of an apartment block at 45 Boyd in James Bay Thursday night ended up in a shouting match between the apartment owner and tenants.

Tenant Thomas Lidston said today the owner repeatedly voiced his objection to the meeting held at 7 p.m. in the lobby of the apartment. It was called so that residents in the 61-suite block could discuss complaints about the condition of the building.

Lidston, who chaired the meeting, said the owner was incensed he had not been invited. The owner claimed the meeting violated a section of the tenancy agreement which specifies public meetings may not be held on the premises, Lidston said.

The meeting ended at 7:45 p.m. with Lidston unable to complete a 15-page statement he had hoped to read to the 50 to 60 tenants who had gathered in the lobby.

A uniformed police officer, who Lidston said was a tenant in the apartment, arrived shortly after the meeting began and stood by to keep tempers from flaring.

Lidston said he adjourned the meeting on the advice of police.

which apply for an order to pay rent to the Rentalsman until conditions in the building are improved.

"I expect to get many more," he said. "I'm convinced 80 per cent of the tenants will sign."

A spokesman for the Rentalsman said today an investigation will be made and if the compalints are found to be legitimate the office could order a redirection of next month's rent—about $12,000—and use the money for repairs.

$105,000 Grant to Bastion

A $105,000 Canada Council grant will enable Victoria's Bastion Theatre Company to stage large-scale productions this year, says a spokesman for the company.

Bastion will receive one of 91 grants totalling $5.5 million to be presente dto theatre groups across Canada. Last year, the company received a $70,000 grant.

Word of this year's windfall came on the eve of Bastion Theatre's season opener, John Heath's production of the rock musical Godspell.

A record 1400 persons have subscribed for this year's performances and the company expects to gain another 600 subscribers by curtain time at 8 tonight.

One of the most successful musicals of recent time, Godspell is a vital, tuneful asd joyous version of the Gospel according to St. Matthew—a linking together of the parables and life of Jesus Christ in a rhythmic contemporary score with simple pop-style lyrics and libretto.

Shawn Lawrence of Toronto appears in the role of Jesus. Others in the cast include Same Moses, Dan Costain, Stan Lesk, Dorothy Post and Stephen Witkin.

Moses, Lesk and Witkin all played the same roles in a successful Theatre New Brunswick production of the musical.

Meanwhile, Bastion still has vacancies in the 13th annual winter theatre school junior classes for children aged seven to 10 years. Sessions start Tuesday.

CANADA TO ATTEND SUMMIT?

WASHINGTON (CP) — A spokesman for President Ford said today he fully anticipates Canada will be invited to the economic summit when it opens in Paris next month.

The announcement of the conference said the heads of government of West Germany, France, Italy, Japan, Britain and the United States will meet Nov. 15-17 but made no mention of Canada.

Guest Guidelines Soon For Oak Bay Lounge

Oak Bay council is preparing regulations to govern who can drink in the new recreation centre's social lounge.

Council decided to set down guest guidelines to guard against the possibility of the lounge becoming a "neighborhood pub."

Mayor Brian Smith said Thursday:

"This lounge was not designed for people who want to drop in for a tot. We don't want a neighborhood pub there," Smith said.

He stressed that any social lounge would be designed for people who use the facilities and pay an admission.

Original proposal stipulated lounge operating hours from 6 p.m. to 11:30 p.m., but according to Ald. Shirley Dowell those hours would prohibit late curlers from having a drink. Last curling games are to end at 11:15 p.m.

But Ald. Doug McLelland argued that the lounge would be so packed by that time that curlers wouldn't be able to get in anyway.

He suggested there has to be a way of discouraging people not involved in the activities from wandering in off the street.

Further discussion was adjourned until regulations are prepared.

Gun Law Clamps Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Thurday that a series of proposals including tighter gun control laws and an end to capital punishment should be announced in Parliament by the end of the month.

The proposals also will include reductions in parole and more compensation to the victims of crime.

Allmand, at a meeting of the York South Liberal Association, refused to discuss details of the proposals because he said they have not been approved by the cabinet.

He said he wants to extend limits on gun ownership to all firearms and ammunition, requiring anyone who buys or receives arms or ammunition to have a federal licence.

"We're also thinking of putting strict criminal and civil liability on the control of guns," he said, adding that civil liabilty will require the co-operation of the provinces.

He said the government will consider a proposal calling for a person whose gun is stolen to prove he had taken reasonable steps to lock it up.

Allmand said proposals will be discussed with provincial attorneys-general as soon as they are tabled in the Commons.

The government also is considering a requirement that persons convicted a second time of violent crime be forced to serve half their sentence before they are eligible for parole, he said. At present, prisoners can apply for parole after serving one-third of their sentence.

HIGHRISE SCHEME DROPPED

A Saanich developer has discarded plans for a highrise apartment scheme on Arbutus Cove and will present an alternative proposal "aimed at acceptance by the community" after the municipal election.

G. S. Bains, in a letter to Saanich council Thursday, said community opposition to the highrise proposal prompted him to drop it.

His compnay, Gordon Head Developments Ltd., had proposed a 122-unit development on nine acres of former Ker Property at 2282 Arbutus Road.

Mayor Ed Lum, however, was opposed to the plan and his sentiments were echoed this week by the Gordon Head Ratepayers Association.

Council turned down invitations from the company for informal presentation of plans and a tour of the property and asked that Bains apply through usual channels.

Scholarship Cancellation Angers Trustee

DUNCAN — MacMillan Bloedel's cancellation of a $500 a year community scholarship given for the last 20 years to a student in the Duncan school distrcit has disgusted one of the district trustees.

"It disgusts me that a company of that size and magnitude would find it necessary to make such a poor gesture," Trustee Dave Bradbury told the school board.

MacMillan Bloedel manager of community relations E. G. Stroyan said in a letter to the board that severe economic conditions were forcing the company to cut back in several areas of activity, including the yearly scholarship.

Bradbury said the company was crying wolf to convince its emplyees that it couldn't afford any increases.

Oil Stocks Decline At Dull Toronto

Volume by 2 p.m. shrank to 880,000 shares from 1.04 million at the same time Thursday. Falling issues outnumbered gains 152 to 131 with 205 shares unchanged.

Trading in shares of Daon Development Corp. was delayed from opening pending dissemination of news of capital reorganization. The company said its directors have approved a two-for-one stock split and the creation of class A preferred shares, both subject to shareholders approval. Daon Development closed Thursday at $97⅛.

Among industrials, Hamilton Trust fell ⅝ to $10⅝, Pacific Pete ½ to $26¼, Woodward Stores A ½ to $18½, Alcan ½ to 20½ and Indusmin ⅜ to $7⅝.

Canadian General Electric rose 1 to $25, Rolland Paper A ½ to $7, Dylex A ⅜ to $7⅛, Kaiser Resources ¼ to $11½ and Calgary Power A ⅛ to $25⅜.

Falconbridge Copper lost ¼ to $6⅜ and Consolidated Canadian Faraday 12 cents to $2.83 while Camflo edged up ⅛ to $10⅝.

Losses among oil producers included United Canso, down ⅝ to $7⅛, Alberta Eastern ¼ to $7½ and PanCanadian Pete ⅛ to $17. Skye Resources was up 15 cents to $2.85.

New York

The stock market was mixed amid the counter-balancing influences of declining interest rates and concern over New York City's financial situation.

Gainers maintained a 4-to-3 lead in realtively light trading over losers in the over-all count at New York.

With the supply of cash and demand deposits in the economy growing much more slowly than the Fed's target range of five to 7½ percent, the hope was that the central bank would move to a more stimulative credit policy that would tend to drive interest rates downward.

Just the expectation of such a development was enough to push rates sharply lower in the short-term money markets during the day.

But analysts said it appears investors were still on their guard because of the uncertainties posed by New York City's financial troubles.

Western Mines Management Wins Round Against Dissidents

VANCOUVER (CP) — Western Mines Ltd. Thursday won the first round of a battle against dissidents who are seeking to dislodge management when Mr. Justice H. C. McKay of the British Columbia Supreme Court refused an application for an injunction against the company.

Mr. Justice McKay, saying that a speedy decision was necessary, handed down his decision only seconds after lawyers had completed their arguments in the case.

He said he would give detailed reasons for his decision later.

Brian McLoughlin, a lawyer appearing for Western and seven of its directors, said Thursday that the injunction sought by dissidents "was patently an attempt to obtain the court's assistance in a takeover attempt."

McLoughlin argued that "the court should not permit itself to be used in this way. The Companies Act provides certain rights to shareholders and the plaintiff should be left to proceed within that act."

Jack Giles, acting for Pat Sheridan, a Toronto mining promoter and geophysicist, argued that "we are entitled to go to a requisitioned meeting of shareholders with the protection of the court."

By "we," Giles said, he meant to include all the requisitionists.

Sheridan, who launched his action in the name of a public company which he controls, called Shield Development Ltd., also has a number of allies controlling Western shares.

Giles said Sheridan had the support of 437,000 shares in addition to an option of a 25 per cent block of Western stock that he has.

The injunction he sought was an order to prohibit Western from spending the $12 million in its treasury or issuing treasury shares until an extraordinary general meeting of shareholders can be held.

Such a meeting has been requisitioned and Western president Hugh Snyder said Wednesday that the company's board of directors will set a date for it at a meeting of directors next Tuesday.

Mr. Justice McKay said Wednesday, "the shareholders clearly approved of the company's new thrust at its last annual meeting in May."

He agreed with interpretation of the B.C. Companies Act that it was the intention of the legislature to allow five per cent of a company's shareholders to force a special company meeting.

"But does it mean that a company can be thwarted every time five per cent of the shareholders get together?" he pondered.

The judge said there was no suggestion that management "had suddenly veered in a new direction" since the meeting in May.

At the requisitioned meeting of shareholders, Sheridan seeks to gain control of the company and pay out all of the company's $12 million in dividends except that which is needed for working capital, and concentrate on development of Western's Buttle Lake base metals-precious metals mine on Vancouver Island.

Present management wants to engage in a diversification program, keeping the treasury in reserve for possible acquisitions.

DAON PLANS SHARE SPLIT

Daon Development corporation said Thursday it proposed to split present shares of the company two for one and create a 75-cent class A share.

Daon said it requested the stock exchanges in Vancouver, Calgary, Toronto and Montreal to cease trading in the shares of Daon today.

The real estate firm said that to become operative, its capital reorganization plan requires approval of the Supreme Court of B.C., various regulatory bodies and 75 per cent of the Daon shareholders at the special general meeting to be held in Vancouver, November 6.

The company said it is also subject to favorable ruling from revenue Canada with respect to income tax implications.

According to the company, authorized share capital will be increased under the plan to 12 million shares form three million, and divided into two classes, one of 10 million common shares, with 3,041,240 outstanding, and one of two million 75-cent class A cumulative redeemable shares, with no shares oustanding before November 21.

O'Brien Agency To Close

VANCOUVER (CP) — M. J. O'Brien said Thursday that the advertising agency he founded 38 years ago will close Dec. 31.

O'Brien has decided to retire due to ill health.

Also to be closed is O'Brien Consultants Ltd. which was formed in 1964. The two companies employ about 12 people.

Cornat Industries

Cornat Industries Ltd. has ansounced it has purchased 92 per cent of the issued and outstanding common shares of Bennett Pollution Controls Ltd. of North Vancouver for about $2.2 million.

John Bennett, president of Bennett Pollution Controls, said the purchase of Cornat has increased the company's sales potential. The company designs and manufactures oil pollution control equipment and operates facilities in North Vancouver and in Seattle through a wholly-owned United States subsidiary.

Grt. National Land

Great National Land and Development Corp. Ltd. of Nanaimo reports profits for the year ended April 30 of $408,661 or 16.5 cents per share, compared to profits of $482,885 or 19.6 cents per share last year.

Gross revenue rose 21 per cent to $11.4 million, while gross assets increased $7.1 million to $23.9 million.

Company president Frank Ney said the reduction in profits stemmed from rapidly accelerating costs of labor and financing.

Cdn. Forest Products

Canadian Forest Products Ltd. announced Thursday it has formed Canfor Investments Ltd., which has offered to the public a million preference shares at par value of $5.

The new shares were being quoted Thursday at between $5 and $5.25.

CFP owns all of Canfor's outstanding one million common shares. The new preference shares are non-voting except under certain conditions.

Canfor has issued to CFP 999,975 common shares valued at $34.9 million, in consideration for CFP's shareholdings in Credit Foncier Franco-Canadien, a Montreal-based mortgage loan company, Cornat Industries Ltd. of Vancouver, Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd. and Intercontinental Pulp Company Ltd., also of Prince George.

CFP, one of the largest privately-owned corporations in Canada, also holds controlling interests in Balco Industries Ltd. of Kamloops and Westcoast Cellulose Industries Ltd. of Vancouver.

LONDON (AP) — Closing gold prices Thursday in U.S. dollars per ounce: London — $140.25; Paris — $146.78; Frankfurt — $141.25; Zurich — $140.00; Hong Kong — $137.06; Beirut — closed.

Natural Gas Export Bid Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board has rejected the latest natural gas export application by Gaz Metropolitan Inc.

The Montreal gas utility had requested NEB permission to export 11.5 million U.S. gallons of liquified natural gas — the equivalent of some one billion cubic feet of natural gas — to the gas utility division of UGI Corp. of Reading, Penn, this fall.

The price under the contract would have been the equivalent of $2 per thousand cubic feet for gas delivered before Nov. 1, and $2.50 per thousand cubic feet for gas delivered between Nov. 1 and Dec. 31.

The Canadian reference price on Nov. 1 will be $1.25 a thousand cubic feet at Toronto city gate.

The Board, in a decision taken last last week, concluded that a more thorough investigation was needed of possible Canadian uses of the "surplus" liquified natural gas held by Gaz Metropolitan before any export would be considered.

Levelling Off Noted In B.C. Crime Curve

Criminal Code offences in B.C. are increasing this year at a much slower rate than last year and there are fewer heroin addicts in the province, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Thursday.

In a speech prepared for an NDP constituency meeting, the minister said offences increased 21.4 per cent in 1974 and so far this year offences are up only nine per cent.

In 1975, he said, 75 pounds of heroin have been seized in B.C. and the reduction in supply has meant "fewer and fewer new addicts are appearing on the scene."

The price of heroin has been driven up to as much as $65 a cap and the quality has gone down because of the work of the government's special CLEU organization (Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit), he said.

"It's hard for young people to get hooked on hard drugs anymore; they just can't afford the habit."

But Macdonald said the threat posed by organized crime "is as ominous as it ever was" and he called on the federal government to take more leadership in crime fighting.

Ottawa is delaying negotiations over police contracts for the provinces and municipalities, he said. Last April requests for new police were submitted to the federal government and the provinces have not had an encouraging response.

The RCMP say they need 107 additional policemen in B.C., said Macdonald, but the federal treasury board has only agreed to 74.

"Police, it must be said, are much more important to the justice system than has been recognized," said Macdonald.

Police are the best tool for fighting crime, he said, and their preventive role saves the government money in the court and jail systems.

The cost of breaking drug syndicates puts great strains on the provincial budget especially since many of the couriers who are caught can't speak the language, have no money and have to be given legal aid.

"In 1974 we had two cases of conspiracy to traffic. This year, 16 conspiracy cases are under way and the legal aid cost per man arrested will exceed $20,000," said Macdonald.

Whaling Ban Remains

A provincial moratorium on the capture of killer whales will continue indefinitely under new regulations approved by cabinet Thursday.

The regulations change the Wildlife Act to give the province control over captured killer whales in coastal waters off B.C.

Killer whales are added to the section of the act which regulates the keeping of birds and mammals in captivity and therefore a provincial permit will be needed before whales can be held captive.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Jack Radford first imposed a moratorium on the capture of whales in September and he said Thursday the ban will be continued because the province will simply not issue any permits for capture.

"I am appealing to federal fisheries minister Romeo LeBlanc to support this moratorium until such time as we can safely predict the impact on any further capture on the killer whale population," said Radford.

Foreigners Tax Cut Urged in U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The House of Representatives ways and means committee has recommended an end to the 30-per-cent U.S. tax on foreigners receiving income from investments in American stocks, bonds or banks.

Such a move could save foreign investors about $165 million in 1976.

TORY MINISTERS MADE DEATH PACT

LONDON (Reuter) — Ministers in Britain's last Conservative cabinet made an unwritten death pact in case one of them was kidnapped by guerrillas, according to a former lord chancellor.

Speaking in an interview with the BBC, Lord Hailsham said the ministers of Edward Heath's government — in power from 1970 to 1974 — agreed that each one of them "was to be expendable and expended" rather than give in to demands from kidnappers.

"We agreed that if any one of us was abducted the others would let him die rather than bow to the men of violence," said Hailsham.

Maurice Strong Heads Petro-Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Strong, 46-year-old head of a United Nations secretariat and former head of Canada's foreign aid agency, is to be named chairman and president of the new national oil company, it was learned Thursday.

Senior sources in the government say Strong, a Manitoba native, is the man to set up Petro-Canada.

After the company's board of directors has been appointed, the government intends to recommend the appointment of Strong to the combined two top executive jobs.

Under legislation passed earlier this summer, the board is appointed by the government. The board, in turn, has the power to appoint the president and chairman, subject to ratification by the cabinet.

Turning the power to appoint the executives over to the board from cabinet came at the insistence of Progressive Conservatives during a lengthy debate over the legislation in the Commons.

But with the government naming all the directors, recommending Strong and holding a veto over the jobs, his appointment is assured.

Primary target of the new company, set up with initial funding of $500 million over five years and the right to borrow an additional $1 billion from the government, is exploration and development of new oil and natural gas supplies. The bill also igves it power to move into refining and marketing in the future, if government decides such action is needed.

Energy planners had hoped to see the exploration effort start this year, but the company fell victim to government spending cuts in June. A new federal budget held its spending to an already committed $130 million in the Suncrude Canada Ltd. oil sands project in Alberta and $10 million for organizing costs.

There were reports from Nairobi, Kenya, Thursday that Strong already had resigned from his post as head of the United Nations Environmental Secretariat, a job he took in 1970 at the request of then UN secretary-general U Thant.

The appointment marks another turn in a career that took Strong from a lowly job as a seaman to the executive suite of one of the country's largest corporations.

He made two voyages as a seaman while still in his early teens before returning to school at his father's request, receiving his high school diploma at 15.

At 17, after two years working in the north for Hudson's Bay Co., he helped set up a mining company and by 19 was working as a statistician for a stock brokerage firm.

Strong later became an executive of an oil company in Calgary, leaving at age 23 to take a two-year world tour with his wife.

He returned to business in the west but by 1934, when he was 35, had been appointed president of Power Corp. of Canada, one of the country's largest firms.

A self-made millionaire, he left the corporation in 1966 to take over as head of the Canadian International Development Agency, the federal body that oversees aid to other countries.

SAANICH NOMINATION DATE LIKELY OCT. 31

Saanich may set a nomination deadline of Oct. 31 for the byelection to fill the aldermanic seat vacated by Mel Couvelier, who resigned to run for mayor.

Couvelier had another full year to serve.

Municipal clerk Gordon Hayward said that, while no decision has been made by council, it would not be possible to call the byelection and ask for nominations with a deadline earlier than Oct. 31.

Deadline for nominations for mayor and four other aldermanic seats is Oct. 27.

Election date for all positions, including the one-year term, will be Nov. 15.

Hayward said only two sets of nomination papers had been received to date, both for mayor. The candidates, already announced, are Couvelier and Mayor Ed Lum.

The mayoralty and four aldermanic positions are for two-year terms while the byelection for alderman will be for one year.

Advisory Labor Dept Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro unveiled Thursday a proposal for decentralization of his department, saying he hopes the new approach can help improve collective bargaining.

The department, Munro said, would try harder to identify and cure problems before they develop. It would give more advice to business and labor.

Munro told a news conference that industrial relations have become worse and "it is strictly a matter of power and muscle."

Deputy minister Tom Eberlee said the Ottawa head office would monitor standards and co-ordinate programs, while offices in Vancouver, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver would deal with regional labor problems.

This, he said, would "create labor departments in miniature in the five regions that cna relate more to the particular needs of the regions."

Redleg Hurler Draws Blank Because of Wall

The best-known fence in baseball, is 315 feet down the left field line and looms 37 feet high. It makes right-handed hitters positively drool and more than one left-handed pitcher has been swallowed up by it.

On Thursday, it even caused a controversy in the camp of the usually placid Reds.

"Sure I'm upset," snapped Norman, who won 12 games during the regular season and also captured the second game of the playoffs against Pittsburgh. "I think I'm one of the guys who got us here."

Norman didn't hide his anger at the decision. "I've been pitching against right-hand hitters all my life and I don't think that's a problem," he said.

The Reds, however, think Gullett, another left-hander, will provide plenty of problems for the Red Sox, the close-in fence notwithstanding.

"We haven't seen their wall and those guys haven't seen something like Don Gullett in a long time," warned Pete Rose, the Reds' peppery lead-off batter.

Gullett will be Cincinnati's starting pitcher in Saturday's opener. He'll oppose Luis Tiant, the man with a million motions, some of which the Reds think may be balk moves.

Anderson was angry at a report that he had sent films of Tiant's move to the National League offices. "That is a total lie," he said. But Anderson said he would seek a clarification of the balk rule in the pre-series meeting with the umpires.

"I want it thoroughly discussed and I want it decided what is a balk and what isn't," said Anderson.

In question is Tiant's habit of pitching from a stretch position that includes a series of semi-stops. Anderson said he wants "a legitimate stop."

Tiant anticipates no problem.

"He can say what he wants," the veteran right-hander said. "I don't let it bother me."

"I'm not going to change, not after all these years. I've been in the major leagues 11 years and I've never had a balk called on me."

Meanwhile, Boston manager Darrell Johnson pulled a minor surprise, naming left-hander Bill Lee to start the second game against Anderson's surprise starter, Billingham.

Lee has not started since Sept. 19 but won 17 games during the regular season. He was not used in the playoffs against Oakland with Johnson starting Canadian native Reggie Cleveland and Rick Wise after Tiant.

"For one thing, Lee's left arm is fine again after a little soreness and basically he's a ground-ball pitcher," said Johnson. "He's also been a consistent winner in our ball park."

Johnson said Wise will start the third game of the series Tuesday night in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. Cleveland will move to the Boston bullpen for the first three games.

"Wise is a high-ball pitcher and should do better in their big ball park and on their artificial turf," said Johnson.

The manager must have been checking the past performance charts on that selection. Wise pitched a no-hitter against the Reds in Riverfront is 1971 and two years later carried another no-hitter into the ninth inning at Riverfront before surrendering Cincinnati's only hit in that game to Joe Morgan.

Saturday's opening game in the world series between Cincinnati and Boston will be telecast on channels 6 and 5 starting at 10 a.m.

Freedom of Contract Near In U.K. Soccer

Baseball is slowly getting unstuck from its controversial reserve clause; hockey players can usually find ways of escaping their commitments with clubs they sign for; football players are entitled to play out their option and then sign for another team (with suitable compensation of course); and now English football is about to undergo a similar revolution.

The issue is the same as in the North American professional world — the right of the player to sell his services to the highest bidder. In Britain it's called "freedom" of contract.

Details of the plan may already be finalized, members of the Professional Footballers' Association and the Football League were that close to agreement a few weeks ago. And if there is agreement, then the new system will enable the top players to shop around for a better offer. At the presest time, players are tied to their clubs under a retain and transfer system which about 10 years ago was declared illegal in a High Court test case.

Opinion is naturally divided on the matter, some feeling that it may be the blow to crush English soccer with the weight of extra financial burden, others agreed that it is time the players had the right to make their own deal. Whatever the final result, it is the players who will gain the most. Because even if, as in U.S. football, when a player leaves one club for another, compensation will be paid to the club losing the player, the amount will be less than under the present transfer fee level. The drop in the transfer fee is considered to be a good thing but the clubs fear that any gains there will go to the player in higher salaries or signing-on bonuses.

On the other hand many football players are fearful for their livelihood under the new plan. It is their worry that a handful of the richer clubs will corner the market on the star players, thus the standards of the other clubs would necessarily drop. That eventually could mean lower gate receipts and possibly the end of the road for some of the smaller clubs in the Football League and jobs for footballers.

Several years ago when the first step was taken in the liberation of the professional soccer player, the maximum wage being lifted, it was then feared that many minor clubs would be in serious trouble and football would suffer.

But the game survived and most of the clubs continued to operate. The players in the pre-60s of course weren't xactly the highest-paid people in the land. Before 1961 when the maximum wage was lifted it wasn't possible for a player to earn more than £1,250 a year. Now there are about 100 of the better players who drew basic pay of over £8,500 ($17,850) a year, an amount which can be augmented, and usually is, by special bonus arrangements.

And now if the soccer player is about to be able to pick his own employer, it is simply a parallel to pro sports on this side of the pond And why not? Somehow, I think U.K. football will survive. It has done all right so far.

Meanwhile, in other soccer news, if there is much speculation on who will be selected to play for England on Oct. 29 against Czechoslovakia in a game that is considered vital to England's chances of qualifying for the European finals, the English team has been under fire for another reason. It has been criticized for attempting to confuse the Czechs with unsportsmanlike tactics in a previous 2-1 win over Switzerland. It seems the players' numbers were deliberately mixed up, the wrong players took corner kicks, the club's deliberate patterns were abandoned and even the wrong player, Keegan, instead of Channon, took a penalty kick!

Why? To confuse the opposition? Oh, no. To fool the Czech officials who were present at Brasle scouting the English. The attempt at subterfuge wasn't considered fair play and the question raised was how can England's reputation be restored internationally by this sort of nonsense?

At any rate, that's this week's report, direct from the English sporting scene, delightfully entertaining as always.

Bridgman Scores In Flyers' Opener

By The Canadian Press

Goaltender Dave Reece waited a long time to start a National Hockey League game. After Thursday night, he may be wondering if the wait was worth it.

Montreal Canadiens, continuing their high-scoring ways that saw them shut out Los Angeles Kings 9-0 Wednesday night, put seven goals behind the rookie goaltender en route to a 9-4 win.

Reece, a 27-year-old veteran of the Bruins' farm system who has spent the last three seasons in the American Hockey League, was unable to complete the game after taking a shot in the mid-section early in the third period.

Gilles Gilbert came in on relief and allowed the remaining Montreal goals.

In other NHL games Thursday night, Philadelphia Flyers edged Washington Capitals 5-4 and Buffalo Sabres beat Detroit Red Wings 4-0 behind Roger Crozier's 30th NHL shutout.

Reece, one of the few American-born goaltenders in the NHL, toiled with Rochester Americans of the AHL last season after two seasons with the now-defunct Boston Braves.

He played well in the exhibition season this year and was named Wednesday by Boston coach Don Cherry to start in the Bruins home opener.

Boston staked Reece to a 3-2 lead in the first period, but Montreal came back with five goals in the second. Guy Lafleur and Peter Mahovlich scored two goals each for the Canadiens.

Reggie Leach scored with 1:55 left in the game to give Philadelphia its win over the vastly-improved Capitals.

Washington trailed 4-2 going into the final period, but tied the game on goals by Stan Gilbertson and Blair Stewart.

Rookie Mel Bridgman, the NHL's top amateur draft pick who played with Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League last season, picked up his first NHL goal at 18:35 of the second period to give the Flyers their 4-2 lead.

Crozier was only called upon 19 times to post the shutout in Buffalo's apening game of the season. Detroit goalie Jim Rutherford had 45 shots directed his way.

Buffalo took 23 shots in the first period, scoring on only one, a power-play goal by Rene Robert at the 5:10 mark.

"They (the Sabres) really were moving the puck around in that first period," Rutherford said. "But you expect that here. What really impressed me about them was they checked better than in the past and forced us to make some mistakes."

Ex-Shamrock MVP Choice

Ivan Thompson of Victoria certainly made an impression in his first season in the National Lacrosse League.

The former captain of the Victoria Shamrocks of the Western Lacrosse Association led Boston Bolts to a third-place finish and scored 207 points to finish fourth in the individual scoring race.

For his efforts the native of Huntsville, Ont., has been named the league's most valuable player.

In addition, he was also selected to the league all-star team as a defenceman. In his four years with the Shamrocks he was a forward.

Hayes, who won the scoring title with 230 points, and Davis, the only repeater from the 1974 squad, were the only unanimous choices.

Hayes and Garnaey are former members of Vancouver Burrards of the WLA while Durante played for Coquitlam Adanacs in 1974.

Johnston, who had 166 points, was named rookie of the year. Jim Lynch of Victoria, now with Philadelphia, won the award last season.

Montreal netminders Mitchell and former-Burrard Dave Evans captured the goaltending award for their respective 13.4 and 13.3 averages which produced the league's lowest goals-against mark.

Defenceman Ted Greves of Long Island won best defensive player honors while Davis, who had 208 points and 16 penalty minutes in 48 games, was voted the award for sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct.

Boxers Extend String

London Boxing Club stretched its unbeaten string to four games with an 11-6 win over Chemainus Blues in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game Thursday at G. R. Pearkes Arena.

Al McLaren sparked the Boxers with four goals while Brian Hamilton added three. Graham Brown, Ron Poole, Steve Andrejkew and Les Bergman scored once each.

Spence Simmons and Con Dillabough combined for 37 saves for the Blues while Geoff Ward blocked 18 shots for the Boxers.

Road Woes Continue For Cats

MEDICINE HAT — Victoria Cougars' manager and coach Pat Ginnell probably wishes he could start his current two-week road trip over again.

Since the team left Victoria Monday, Ginnell has had nothing but problems.

For a starter there was the lingering controversy involving himself and Victoira Mayor Peter Pollen. The two engaged in a heated discussion in Saturday's Western Canada Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

Wendsday in Calgary, the Courgars dropped a 6-5 decision to the Centennials, a team they beat 9--2 Saturday. More important, the Victoria club lost the services of winger Rick Martin, who suffered a 30-stitch cut on his leg and will be out of action about 10 days.

It doesn't end there. Defenceman Dallas Ellerby, obtained in a trade with the Cents Sunday, didn't turn up for the trip to Medicine Hat and Ginnell doesn't know his whereabouts.

The news was still bad for Ginnell Thursday night. His Cougars dropped their second straight decision, losing 9-2 to the previously winless Medicine Hat Tigers.

It was the Cougars' power play which failed them. They had only one shot with a two-man advantage for 83 seconds in the third period and the winning goal by John Holiworth came with the Tigers shorthanded.

Victoria lost much of its power-play punch when Dan Lucas, a 113-point scorer last season, was ejected mid-way thorugh the second period.

Normally a quiet type, Lucas became incensed at a penalty call, drew a misconduct for a remark to the referee and was issued a game misconduct for making the "choke" sign.

Lucas opened the scoring in the first period with his fourth of the season. Jim Gustafson added the other two Victoria goals to push his points total to 12 in just three games.

Medicine Hat netminder Ken Holland stopped 34 shots, including 21 in the final 20 minutes.

Tigers took 10 of 18 minor penalties and the clubs split six majors.

Sudden-Death Race for Ski Crown?

The world Alpine ski championship next season could be settled by a sudden-death race in the controversial parallel slalom, according to new rules made available Wednesday by the International Ski Federation (FIS) in Berne, Switzerland.

If two or more competitors are within 10 points of each other at the end of the season, the FIS said a challenge round would be held over the parallel slalom course during the final event of the year.

Last season Italina Gustavo Thoeni won his fourth World Cup by defeating Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark in a thrilling parallel slalom final at Val-Gardena, Italy.

This type of skiing, in which competitors race against each other in pairs on adjacent tracks, was included in the World Cup for the first time last year. It was popular with spectators but criticized by some skiers who said it was an unpredictable test.

The World Alpine Cup season opens at Dec. 4 at Val d'Isere, France. The first section ends on Jan. 12, with the second period running from Jan. 17 to March 21 with a break for the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, Feb. 4-15.

SPORTS SHORTS

British Columbia Lions said today Monroe Eley has been waived though the Canadian Football League and has signed with the National Football League Atlanta Falcons.

Eley, who refused to report to Lions' training camp earlier this year, was placed on the Western Football Conference team's retirement list after several attempts to persuade him to play failed.

The Lions said they tried to trade Eley to an Eastern Football Conference club recently but the deal fell through when the club insisted the trade was contingent upon his signing. They would not identify the team.

Falcons hold Eley's NFL rights.

Lions also announced the release of running back Wayne Moseley, who came to the Lions during a pre-season trade.

Rookie outfielder Fred Lynn and manager Darrell Johnson of the American League baseball champion Boston Red Sox have been honored in voting conduoted by the Sporting News.

Lynn was the first rookie to be named American League Player of the Year since the baseball awards began in 1948. The centre fielder also was named 1975 Rookie of the Year.

Johnson was named 1975 Major League Manager of the Year in a poll of managers conducted before the Red Sox captured the league title Tuesday night against the defending World Series champion Oakland A's.

The National League Player of the Year Award is to be announced next week.

Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association said Wednesday that Montreal Canadiens' general manager Sam Pollock has agreed to terms to release forward Peter Sullivan from his contract obligations with the National Hockey League club.

However, the Canadiens now are attempting to clear Sullivan through the National Hockey league on courtesy waivers. That is expected to take about one week.

Only Two Island Areas Worth Trying For Salmon

If you're planning on fishing for salmon around Vancouver Island this weekend, it might be a wise idea to confine your activities to the Greater Victoria or Campbell River vicinities.

That's where most of the catches have been made in the past week.

Becher Bay waters were deserted for the most part Wednesday and Thursday because of adverse weather but Tuesday was nothing short of fantastic for a number of fishermen.

Peter Newman tied into a limit catch consisting of a 15-pound chinook and three coho weighing 10, eight and six pounds while trolling with super-strip off Beechey Head.

Two 17-pound coho were also weighed is that day. Frank Bellagente took his on a hootchie off the Head and Thomas Charles Jr. landed his on a buzz-bomb near Church Island. Thomas' brother, Peter, landed a 10-pound coho with the same gear and Thomas Charles Sr., who was fishing separately, boated a 15-pound coho on strip near the Head.

How's that grab you.

Coho to eight and chinooks to 16 pounds started to appear Wednesday off the kelp bed in Pedder Bay with most of the catches coming in on stingsildas, buzz-bombs and strip.

Off Oak Bay, Trial Island, Fiddle Reef, The Gap and Chain Island waters have yielded fair catches of chinooks to 12 pounds and coho to 13 using just about anything in the tackle box.

Bamberton and Henderson Point are the best spots to try in Saanich Inlet for small chinooks and a few coho that tip the scales to 10 pounds.

Bucky Kennett reports fishing in Cowichan Bay is "lousy" but suggests trying some deep trolling with strip near Burial Island.

Fishermen working the portion of the Cowichan River which isn't closed have picked up some good coho catches on spinner lures, an indication that last run must have headed river pretty fast.

A few salmon are being picked up in the upper part of Alberni Inlet and buzz-bombers are landing chum salmon at the mouth of the Sarita River. Most of the latter catches, however, were probably made by hooking the salmon in a portion of the body other than the mouth.

Fly anglers are pulling in coho salmon by fishing from the shore near the mouths of the Big Qualicum and Oyster rivers using any of the yellow-bodies salmon patterns.

Surface fishing, especially with bucktails, is still good for coho to 13 pounds off Cape Mudge and the Quadra Island Lighthouse.

Trout anglers are still doing well at Brannan and Westwood lakes near Nanaimo while others are picking up sea-run cutthroat trout from 16 to 18 inches in length by fishing with spinner and roe in the Nanaimo River.

Great Central Lake, near the mouth of McBride Creek, is yielding trout to six pounds on bait fished along the bottom.

The scoring outburst boosted Miss Bland's league-leading goal total to 34 in eight matches. She now holds a 20-goal lead over Mary Cavin, runner-up in the scoring race, who counted once during Oak Bay's 3-0 victory over visiting Dunsmuir.

Top Canadians Ignoring Games

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Canadians are hoping to increase their harvest of medals at the seventh Pan-American Games starting Sunday but no one realistically expects them to improve on their third-place standing behind the United States and Cuba.

One reason is that at least two dozen of Canada's top athletes in such sports as track and field, swimming and diving and weightlifting are not here, most of them because they chose not to come.

Another is that the Cubans, who finished second to the U.S. in Cali, Colombia, in 1971, are reported to have geared their whole athletic program to the task of overtaking the Americans, who have dominated the Games since they were inaugurated in 1951.

Four years ago, Canada won 76 medals, including 20 gold, 19 silver and 37 bronze, and that was a drop from 1967 when the Canadians captured 92 medals.

If Cuba is ever going to catch the United States, this may be its best chance. The Americans, like the Canadians, have left many of their best athletes at home.

Notable absentees from both the Canadian and American teams are top swimmers although the Canadian view is that competition in this area will still be virtually a dual meet between the two countries.

Missing from the Canadian team are such stars as Nancy Garapick, the 14-year-old backstroke sensation from Halifax who ranks No. 2 in the world, Becky Smith of Edmonton, top Canadian in the individual medley, and Stephen Pickell of Vancouver, No. 1 backstroker.

The optimistic view of Canadian team officials, however, is that the replacements for those who didn't make the trips are all medal contenders.

Bruce Robertson of Vancouver is expected to be in the medals in the 100-metre butterfly, having returned almost to the form he displayed in the 1973 world championships in Yugoslavia where he won a gold.

Other potential medal winners include Brazilian-born Jim Adams of Vancouver, who has been cleared by Brazil to compete for Canada, Joann Baker of Thunder Bay, Ont., national 200-metre breaststroke champion, and freestyle specialist Gail Amundrud of Vancouver.

In track and field, two of Canada's top high-jumpers, Claude Ferragne of Montreal and Greg Joy, have passed up the PanAm. But such stars as shotputter Bishop Dolegiewicz of Montreal, Jay Dahlgren of Vancouver in the javelin, Diane Jones of Saskatoon in the pentathlon, middle distance runner Abbie Hoffman of Toronto and high jumper Debbie Brill of Victoria are rated as medal threats.

Susan Nattrass and John Primrose of Edmonton, world champions in trapshooting, are expected to lead a strong showing in match shooting competition.

Boxing executive Jerry Shears of Montreal says that with a little luck in the draw the seven-man boxing team could surprise a few of the experts. However, this is a sport that is likely to be dominated by the Americans, Cubans and Venezuelans.

One Canadian boxer with a chance at a gold is Brian Gibson, formerly of Kentville, N.S., and now of Montreal, a lightheavyweight who seems to have caused some concern in the Cuban camp although he is hobbled by a sprained ankle. Gibson won a gold in the North American zone competition in Miami this summer.

Vye Only Dolphin Selected All-Star

Defensive halfback Bruce Vye was the only member of Victoria Dolphins elected to the Big Four Football Conference all-star team.

Vancouver Meralomas led the selections with nine players. Named to the offenseive squad were guard Pat Dion, quarterback Sheldon Paris, halfback Allan Wade, place kicker and punter Ed Thomas and ends Trevor Jolleys and George Koch.

Meralomas voted to the defensive team were end Pat Little, linebacker Wes Fransen and halfback Eric Ford.

League-champion Renfrew Trojans placed guard Ken McLarty, tackle Mike McCultim and widereceiver Toshio Shimuzue on the offence and tackle Doug Cook and halfback Brian Williams on the defence.

Centre Kevin Grant, tackle Reg Scott were the only members of North Shore Cougars to make the offence. End Ross Elliot, linie-backer Jim Gatzke and halfback Geoff Hamilton made the defence.

Named to the offensive team from Vancouver Blue Bombers were halfback Darrell Hall and wide-receiver Frank Scaliotto. Tackle Dave Clarke and linebackers Louis Dorofrio and Doug Milnes were defensive picks.

In sudden-death, semi-final play Sunday in Vancouer, the Trojans play the Blue Bombers and the Meralomas meet the Cougars.

Trip Sets Jets On 'Right Road'

QUEBEC (CP) — A three-week stay in Europe by Winnipeg Jets helped the World Hockey Association team start the 1975-76 season on the right foot Thursday night as they defeated Quebec Nordiques 5-3.

At least that is the opinion of Winnipeg coach Bobby Kromm.

"That trip put us on the right road," said Kromm. "However, we weren't at our best tonight. We gave up two bad goals in the first period and we had to come back."

Rookie Peter Morris scored the winning goal to lead the visiting Edmonton Oilers to a 5-3 win over Calgary Cowboys in a World Hockey Associaton exhibition game. Morris played last year with Victoria Cougarrs of the Western Canada Hockey League.

PRO GOLF ROUNDUP

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Jack Nicklaus added the International All-Star match-play golf championship to his long string of laurels Thursday, defeating Tom Weiskopf, 2 and 1 in the final.

Earlier in the day, Nicklaus trounced Jerry Heard, 6 and 5, while Weiskopf needed a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole to oust Australian Bob Stanton, 1-up.

Nicklaus and Weiskopf were seeded into the semi-finals while Heard and Stanton qualified from a group of eight through three 18-hole rounds.

Nicklaus earned $25,000 for his efforts while Weiskopf pocketed $15,000.

PARIS (AP) — Arnold Palmer, a non-winner on the American tour for two seasons but a two-time victor in Europe this season, took the lead after Thursday's first round of the Lancome Trophy invitational golf event with a three-under-par 69.

Despite needing three putts from two feet at the 17th green, the 46-year-old Palmer led Tony Jacklin of Britain by one stroke. Two shots off the pace was 18-year-old Severiano Ballesteros of Spain.

American Lanny Wadkins parred the 6875-yard, par-72 Saint Nom La Breteche course, Bob Shearer of Australia and Gary Player of South Africa each had one-over 73s and Billy Casper and France's Jean Garaialde each had 75s.

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Defending-champion Hale Irwin and British Open champion Tom Watson scored first-round victories Thursday in the Picadilly world match play golf championship.

Irwin, from the United States, routed Britain's Peter Oosterhuis, 9 and 8 over 36 holes, in the biggest individual victory in this head-to-head elimination tournament since 1969. Watson, also of the U.S., scored a two-up victory over Graham Marsh of Australia.

In the two other matches, Al Geiberger of the U.S. rallied from a five-stroke deficit to beat John Mahaffey, another American, with a sudden-death birdie on the 37th hole, and Jack Newton of Australia beat South African Bobby Cole one up.

INZAI, Japan (AP) — American veteran pro Gene Littler, gunning for his second consecutive title moved into the second-round lead from fifth place with a seven-under-par 135 total today in the $300,000 Taiheiyo Club masters golf tournament.

Two strokes behind Littler at 137 was Allen Miller of the United States, who shot 68 on the 7,187-yard, par-71 Sohbu Country Club.

A stroke behind Miller at 138 was fellow countryman, Jim Simons, who had 70. American Bob Dickson had a 69 for 139.

Mass Air Transport In New Ford Proposal

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Ford Wednesday sent to Congress proposed legislation that would alter sharply the structure of America's domestic airline industry and pave the way for mass transportation by air — at relatively low fares — during the next decade.

Under the White House plan, airlines would be able to raise fares up to 10 per cent a year and to reduce fares by as much as 40 per cent without prior government approval. If approved by Congress, according to administration economic studies, consumers most likely would be able to pay lower fares on long-distance domestic flights.

In the second of three major bills to reduce federal transportation regulation — a railroad bill already is being studied on Capitol Hill and a truck industry bill will be drafted in the next few weeks — Ford called for enactment of the first significant airline legislation since the Civil Aeronautics Board was establishtd in 1938 to protect a fledgling air industry.

For many Americans, the president said in a message to Congress, "air travel has become a luxury too expensive to afford." And part of the reason for high fares, he contended, is an outdated system of regulation that protects industry practices at the expense of travellers.

At a White House briefing, Secretary of Transportation William Coleman Jr. emphasized his belief that the airline proposal would permit the industry to earn a "fair return" on their investments while better serving the needs of individuals.

Coleman also acknowledged the virtually unanimous opposition within the scheduled airline industry to the Ford plan but said significant changes in merger controls and business entry restrictions would be initiated gradually over a five-year period, to prevent any sudden impact on individual companies.

Coleman also said the proposal would make it easier for airlines to discontinue unprofitable services. Communities or states affected by possible abandonments could subsidize such services in the future, with federal aid. The transportation secretary said he does not believe such subsidies would be substantial and the legislation calls for a one-year DOT study of local service subsidies, to include recommendations for improving the current system.

U.S. MDs TO FORM UNION

WASHINGTON (WP) — Delegates representing 13,000 doctors — nearly a third of the 56,000 interns and residents in U.S. hospitals — will meet today to try to form a union that could become a major force in American medical care.

The group is the Physicians' National Housestaff Association, with affiliates that have conducted successful strikes this year in New York and Los Angeles.

"They'll succeed in forming a union here, and we'll work with them to help them," Jerry Wurf, president of the big AFL-CIO American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union, predicted Thursday.

The young physicians — the doctors who give most of the care in so-called "teaching hospitals" — have been organizing with the help of Wurf's union.

Because many work in public hospitals, they have also joined Wurf's public employees, as well as teachers, nurses and others in a Coalition of American Public Employees that is becoming a noticeable new lobby.

"House staff" in hospitals means interns and residents, new medical graduates who spend two or more years in this kind of training.

Skin Books Open To the Blind

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Blind persons in the Philadelphia area have their own radio outlet which now reads them "adult" books sighted people get from the bookstore.

Cath Stevenson says she and other blind people like to read books with sexual themes as much as anyone else, but they haven't been readily available in braille.

So a local group is broadcasting readings from books such as Fear of Flying and the Joy of Sex over a radio network accessible only to blind listeners. The books are read each night during an Adult Book Hour program sponsored by the Radio Information Centre for the Blind (RICB).

"We're trying to provide blind people with the same material as sighted people," said Frank Kastner, director of the program. "So many current books have explicit sexual descriptions and not many of these are available in braille or on talking records."

EVEN TOOTHBRUSH MAY BE BUGGED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watch it. Your electric toothbrush might be eavesdropping on you.

The possibility came out in a public hearing by the house select committee on intelligence which is investigating electronic spying on American citizens.

Martin Kaier, president of a Maryland corporation that specializes in manufacturing some 300 types of electronic surveillance and countermeasure equipment for U.S. intelligence and other agencies said, "I ship the goods. I have no idea what they do with it."

But he said he was intrigued at what he saw during a visit to Ft. Holabird, Md.

"I noticed that my equipment was being inserted into a number of imaginative objects, including but not limited to, mattresses, golf clubs and electric toothbrushes," he said.

Kaiser's said his clients included the CIA, Defence Intelligence Agency, army intelligence, the Air Force office of special investigations, Drug Enforcement Agency, U.S. Postal Service, Secret Service, air task force, Internal Revenue Service, treasury, the FBI "and numerous state and local law enforcement agencies."

$300,000 Daily Loss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Post, in the midst of a strike by pressmen, photoengravers and mailers, said it is losing about $300,000 in daily advertising revenue but plans to have all nine of its presses repaired and functioning within a week.

A spokeswoman for the Post said non-union personnel, who began work Oct. 6 after union repairmen refused to cross picket lines, have already repaired two of the presses.

The presses were damaged when pressmen walked out early Oct. 1. Members of local photoengravers and mailers unions followed the pressmen on strike this week, but editorial employees, members of the Baltimore-Washington Newspaper Guild, have voted three times to continue working, partially because of the vandalism that forced the Post to cancel its Oct. 2 edition.

Sunday Restrictions at Least 5 Weeks Away; Bylaw Whittled Either Too Much, Not Enough

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

There will be at least a month of Sundays before Victoria's proposed restrictions on many forms of Sunday commercial activity become effective.

Victoria city council decided Thursday to table the legislation after hearing widely-differing complaints from three aldermen, including charges on one hand that the amendment to the trades licence bylaw is "entirely discriminatory" and on the other that it doesn't go far enough.

Council accepted a couple of amendments to the bylaw, gave it first three readings and then agreed to hold it over until the next regular council meeting in three weeks.

If it proves acceptable at that time it will be passed, but final approval will then have to wait another two weeks until the next meeting.

It was Ald. Alf Hood who moved to table the draft statute, to give council members ample opportunity to "reflect on" the various points and objections raised. The deferral effectively means council has bought itself five weeks' thinking time.

At one point in the debate Mayor Peter Pollen tossed what appeared to be a challenge to the bylaw's only real opponent, Ald. Malcolm Anderson, in suggesting that Anderson make his stand an election issue.

"I am trying to expose the cowardly lions in the political forest," Pollen said.

"I am seeing the erosion of so many values in our society and no one seems to stand up for them. I would like the population to have a clear idea what they are voting for."

Anderson, who is seeking another two-year term on council in the Nov. 15 civic election, had said earlier that the amendments already incorporated have whittled the bylaw down to a "discriminatory document" which essentially affects only a handful of large retailers.

He said such a course seems illogical when "at least half" the letters expressing support for council's Sunday closure proposal have advocated a total ban on Sunday trading, not a partial prohibition.

The alderman referred to "numerous changes" made in draft form as council in caucus had "agonized" on the matter in recent weeks. Then he added somewhat cryptically: "Most of us have attempted to encourage the bylaw along by not attacking it."

Anderson claimed Ald. Mike Young's latest amendments — deleting clothing from the range of items which would not be sold on Sundays and public holidays, and substituting the word "rugs" for "mats" — "simply proves that it is unworkable."

When the mayor insisted Anderson declare himself either for or against any form of control, he replied that he was firmly opposed to restrictions. Instead, the city should use "some moral suasion" to discourage Sunday opening, he suggested.

Young pointed out that many shopping centre leases contain provisions in which the landlords and major tenants determine the hours of opening for the complex, a policy which doesn't appear particularly permissive in recognizing individual merchants' preferences.

"As a counter-balance I think it would be reasonable for council to step in and perhaps give an impartial and objective set of rules rather than having this domination by the major tenants and shopping centre landlords," he said.

He admitted it was difficult to draft a bylaw which "served the public convenience yet attempted to regulate the trade in a reasonable way."

Yet the bylaw eventually thrashed out did attempt to differentiate between durable, "hard consumer goods" which were not needed on a seven-day-a-week basis and basic necessities and convenience items.

Ald. Bob Ellis expressed misgivings that the bylaw doesn't quite achieve its original intent of restricting all major merchandising functions on Sundays.

The problem first came to council's attention as a result of a major food chain's operations, he said, but the city found it couldn't act against the company "without wiping out the corner merchant."

"I think we're missing something," Ellis told council.

Ald. Sam Bawlf, however, didn't share such concerns. He felt council had shown "a responsible attitude" in recognizing the continued need for availability of retail necessities, and also for certain seasonally-fluctuating goods and services such as merchandise largely sold to tourists.

"In drawing the line I think the bylaw has done a very good job."

To meet an objection raised by Ald. Bill Tindall was really a simple matter, council was informed by city solicitor Jakob de Villiers.

Tindall said the bylaw's failure to prohibit rental firms from practising on Sundays was a serious loophole, for most of the proscribed items could in fact be rented from such firms.

De Villiers said the solution was merely to add the word "rent" to the list of shall-nots.

THERE'S LITTLE SIGN of advertising signs tumbling down all over town, in compliance with Victoria's sign bylaw, but city officials say that may be a misleading impression. Deputy city engineer Bill Jorgensen said he last reviewed the situation Sept. 26 and found more than 50 non-conforming signs had been removed or corrected since the bylaw took effect Aug. 24. That still leaves more than 100 illegal signs, but as long as they continue to come down at a steady rate City Hall apparently isn't too concerned about clobbering the offenders. Billboards, third-party signs and roof signs are those affected. (John McKay photo)

Manslaughter Nets 7 Years For Nicholet

Edward Robert Nicholet, 22, of 1345 Pandora, was sentenced in B.C. Supreme Court today to seven years in the penitentiary for the manslaughter of his estranged 18-year-old wife Patricia.

"It was a dreadful thing that you did," said Mr. Justice Craig Munroe in passing sentence.

He said he was giving "the fullest possible effect" to testimony this morning by four character witnesses who described Nicholet as kind and considerate, especially toward handicapped children for whom he did much volunteer work.

"If you are as good a man as your friends say you are, you will survive this ordeal," said Munroe.

Nicholet sobbed quietly during his half-hour in court this morning.

His lawyer, Ted Pollard, said Nicholet had no criminal record and an excellent work record as an Easter Seals driver for handicapped persons, except for one month spent in jail he worked until his trial began.

Pollard said it was quite obvious what happened was "totally out of character" and he asked the judge to consider the mental and physical dangers of a penitentiary sentence.

Crown counsel Brian Smith said it was not possible to listen to character witness testimony "without feeling some compassion," but the Crown had to point out Nicholet's "reckless disregard and lack of remorse" in his wife's death.

Nicholet was accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment but the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter Thursday after deliberating five hours.

Patricia Nicholet was found drowned on an Inner Harbor beach off Barnard Ave., Victoria West, March 1.

The judge told jurors Thursday they had three options — finding guilty of murder, manslaughter or not guilty.

Munroe said that for a murder conviction a jury must find there was some intent on the mind of Nicholet to either harm or kill his wife. If the jury found the accused had caused his wife's death through an unlawful act without intent to kill or harm, then the verdict should be manslaughter.

Court was told ealier that Nicholet met his wife in Banfield Park in the early hours of March 1 and they drove to the Barnard Avenue beach.

A statement by Nicholet to police said he asked his wife for a divorce because he had a girl-friend, but she refused. Nicholet said his wife fell on steps leading to the beach and he did not push her.

The crown said Nicholet then dragged her down the steps and positioned her so she would fall into the sea.

The defence contended that Mrs. Nicholet tripped and fell on the steps, striking her head and losing consciousness. Nicholet tried to find a pulse or heartbeat and believed she was dead.

Anderson, Beirnes to Run

Two candidates, an incumbent and a newcomer to civic politics, today declared their intentions of running for aldermanic seats on Victoria city council in the Nov. 15 municipal election.

Seeking re-election is 41-year-old stockbroker Malcolm Anderson, who has served three years on council, while Victoria businesswoman Helen Beirnes, 46, is making her first bid on a platform which will "push for a better working relationship between city administration and staff."

Anderson, first elected in a 1972 byelection and now nearing the end of his first full two-year term, told a City Hall press conference this morning that he feels "great pressure" to offer himself to the voters again.

"I hope I have shown that I have an independent mind and can add a lot to the deliberations of council, and I hope that in the next two years I can do an equal amount," he said.

Anderson said he had shown the citizens of Victoria during the municipal strike-lockout earlier this year that he is "not afraid of rolling up my sleeves and getting down to work."

He is chairman of the labor, personnel relations and fire prevention committee, and previously chaired the parks and recreation committee.

As an example of his independent attitude, he recalled he had "resisted the mayor's push" in the matter of suggested controls on topless dancing in drinking establishments.

Among the major tasks facing council in the next two years, he listed the proposed restoration of the old Crystal Garden building and the task of "getting the downtown core together again."

"We have done the breaking down and now is the time to get the traffic flowing again and really getting the people behind us," he said.

Former president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Beirnes feels city council will "have to get down to brass tacks now" to avoid a labor strife this spring.

At a press conference in the Captain's Palace, she said she believes there is a place on council for ordinary people with goodwill for the city.

"Although I can't promise to come up with magic methods to heal the poor working realionship between administration and staff, the lengthy municipal strike earlier this year shows there has to be a better meeting of minds."

She said she will work hard to open channels of communication to have a good solid look at both sides long before contracts are up.

Beirnes has been a professional model here and in Europe since her teens. She is hostess of television show Outlook On Cable 10 Victoria, a lecturer at Camosun College and lists herself as a communication advisor for the tourist industry.

She opposes Victoria's controversial ban on Sunday retailing, proposed in an amendment to the city's trades licence bylaw.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me who was the youngest president of the U.S.? M.L.

A. It depends on whether you are asking about the youngest president elected or the youngest to become president. John Kennedy, at 43, was the youngest elected (and the youngest to die in office). But Theodore Roosevelt in 1901 was the youngest, at 42, to become president. He became president upon the death of William McKinley but was not elected to the office until he was 46. Kennedy, incidentally, succeeded the oldest president in U.S. history, 70-year-old Dwight Eisenhower.

Artist Lowe Dies at 37

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

One of Victoria's most outstanding artists has died of cancer at age 37.

Stephen Lowe, internationally noted for his watercolor landscape, flower and bird paintings, died Thursday in Vancouver General Hospital.

Three months ago, in his Humbobldt Street gallery, Lowe held the most successful showing of his career with people coming from all parts of the U.S. and eastern Canada.

In Victoria he was also well known by hundreds of people who studied Chinese art under his tutelage. He taught for the Art Gallery of Victoria, where his works also hang; the University of Victoria, the Victoria School Board and the Art League of Victoria.

Lowe lived for his art — to depict exquisite works of a world in which man lived in harmony with nature.

"I paint what I feel and what I see in my mind's eye," he once said of his technique.

An intense and hard-working individual, Lowe often worked 18 hours a day for weeks on end on some paintings, done on rice paper combining tradition of the great works of Chinese art with a rare strength and modernism.

Born in 1938 in Toyshan district in Kwang Tung Province, China, he studied in Lingham Art School under Prof. Choa Shao-an. He came to Canada in 1956 as an unknown artist, but soon began to attract attention with his simple but brilliant watercolors.

On two occasions, in 1959 and 1968, he returned to Hong Kong for further short intensive studies under his teacher.

At the family home, 3965 Wolsey Place, he is survived by his wife Eunice, three children, Anna, 14, David, 12, and Theresa, 10. He is also survived by his father, Lau Wah Lai, mother, Fong Wai Yuen in China, a brother, Lau Wan Tsing (Vincent Lau) in Victoria.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Pound Fee Corrected

Out-of-date information supplied by city officials was responsible for an error in a Times article Thursday, concerning current animal impoundment fees and penalties in Victoria.

Fees now paid to redeem impounded animals are not as reported, but $5 for all animals and $5 for each subsequent impoundment.

Woman, 83 Dies in Fire At Oak Bay

The death of an 83-year-old Oak Bay woman Thursday marred Greater, Victoria's Fire Prevention Week.

Jenneke Visschers died of smoke inhalation in her suite at Oak Bay Manor, 2251 Cadboro Bay, after fire engulfed the room.

It was the first death since prevention week began Monday.

Fire officials are still investigating but say smoking in bed may have caused the blaze.

The fire, reported at 8:30 p.m., was confined to one room in D wing.

No one else was injured and other residents of the wing were evacuated to other rooms.

Fire Chief Fred Leeke said Mrs. Visscher's next-of-kin are in Parksville.

Notes on a Short, Surprising Journey

LAST SUMMER, WIN AND I were overtaken by an urge to leave familiar scenes behind but before we could pack and light out, a job of work interferred. With sunny September all but gone, we found ourselves still at home and still plagued by the itch to turn tourist.

Question: What could we manage in the way of a trip with the few days at our disposal?

We hunted up maps and studied them. Finally Win ran a pencil down the Island Highway, skipped it from Victoria to Port Angeles, and circled the land mass which sits like a blocky anvil atop Washington State.

"We haven't been across the border for years," she said, "and we've always meant to drive around the Olympic Peninsula. Suppose we do that?"

I raised objections. There'd be fog. It was too late in the season. The resorts would all be buttoned up. But these were mere token heel-draggings from a slow starter. Next evening, with a batch of homeward-bound American tourists for company, we boarded Black Ball Line's Coho for the Juan de Fuca crossing.

Behind us was Victoria, a picture-book city in the deepening dusk, with its dignified old Empress looming above the Inner Harbor and its Legislative Buildings outlined in lights. We were in Canadian waters, but the Stars and Stripes drooped from the Coho's jackstaff, her vending machines dispensed American cigarettes, and a voice bawling from the shadowed Causeway deepened the sense of premature divorcement from Canada.

'Yankee, go home!'

Smart-ass punk? Some tiger of our prickly new nationalism speeding the parting guest? In any case, a discordant note in a capsule vacation that went better than well.

It was also a disconcerting holiday. It delivered contrasts and confronted us with surprises.

It took us from high and airy Hurricane Ridge with its magnificent views of unspoiled wilderness to coastlines where fantastic rock pinnacles loom in the mist beyond the surf.

The California wines bought casually for low-low prices by Washingtonians in their markets ruined our loyal determination to like the British Columbia product in spite of its harshness.

We saw handgun ammunition for sale in open bins — .45 automatic shells mounded like nails in a Canadian hardware store — but shared the blacktop with disciplined drivers who respect their reduced speed limits.

Often enough to hint of a new isolationism, we spotted large-lettered signs that urged, 'Get us out of the United Nations!' Yet wherever we paused, we met Americans whose courtesy, friendliness and outgoing warmth toward the stranger on their turf couldn't have been improved upon.

The $1.75 lunch in a tavern-plus-restaurant turned out to be no mere snack as Canadians conditioned by high food prices might expect. The salad was almost a meal in itself. The platters with their stacks of barbecued spare-ribs, their mounds of peas and butter-dripping creamed potatoes, would have fed two men and a hungry boy with enough left over to stuff a doggy-bag.

The hordes of strollers on a wave-beaten Pacific beach weren't out for fresh air and exercise as we at first supposed. They had come, many of them from other states, to open the season on razor clams.

If our binoculars enlarged the "mountain goat" of pinkish hue on a rock crag to a hiker in a bright shirt, there was nothing of illusion about the tall timber which the highways threaded for hour after hour.

At Neah Bay, the white storekeeper couldn't sell me cigarettes. That, he explained, was an exclusive right of the Makah Indians on whose reserve his store sat, and to whom he paid a tax on each sale.

The neat resort across the village street, and the salmon boats that lay behind the breakwater, were owned by Makahs who reap tourist dollars where their ancestors hunted the whale.

Random notes, these, from a short holiday in a country close to home. Next week, I'll touch on another aspect of the Olympic Peninsula — one that Vancouver Islanders would do well to ponder.

HUNGER STRIKE FOR HOSTAGES

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Chilean exiles holding five hostages at the UN high commission for refugees said today they were going on a hunger strike until the United Nations arranges their departure from the country.

The exiles—11 Chileans and one Brazilian—also said they would force their captives to go without food asd blankets until a solution is reached.

"We won't budge an inch," they said in a communique. They also reaffirmed their promise to refrain from violence "until we are treated violently."

A hostage identifying himself by the last name Di Guardio, an Argentine employee of the UN high commission for refugees, said "the exiles have done everything else they promised."

Di Guardio said by telephone that he and the other hostages resignedly "had to accept their situation."

Abducted Dutchman Alive, Blindfolded and Bound

DUBLIN (UPI) — The kidnappers of Dutch businessman Tiede Herrema have kept him bound and blindfolded since his abduction last week, a Roman Catholic friar said today.

Rev. Donal O'Mahony said he had communicated with the kidnappers —thought to be an Irish Republican Army splinter group — who abducted Herrema last Friday.

The kidnappers told O'Mahony that Herrema was "mentally exhausted." They said he had been bound hand and foot, had wads of cotton stuffed in his ears and was constantly blindfolded.

O'Mahony said he understood the steps were taken so Herrema "could neither see nor hear his captors."

In a public message to the kidnappers on national radio this morning, O'Mahony thanked them for contacting Herrema's company Thursday and reaffirmed his availability for helping to negotiate the businessman's release.

The Ferenka Co. — in response to conditions set by the kidnappers for the release of Herrema — said Thursday it is closing down its Limerick plant indefinitely at midnight tonight.

"Contact has been made with the kidnappers and negotiations still are going on," a Ferenka spokesman said. "We have confirmation that Dr. Herrema is alive."

MUSCLE MEN OUT

CHICAGO (UPI) — Today's liberated women do not go for the Charles Atlas type man, according to a psychologist.

Paul Lavrakas, a research associate at Loyola University's applied social psychology program, said his study showed most women nowadays prefer men of medi-ford.

um builds, like Robert Red-

Lavrakas showed photographs of 19 male figures to women aged 18 to 30. He said the majority liked men with medium wide upper trunks and medium thin lower trunks and thin legs.

The study also showed that women prefer their own types, Lavrakas said — heavier women liked heavier men and thinner women the more linear males.

Those women who still go for the Charles Atlas type identified themselves as highly feminine types, Lavrakas said.

Lennon Son Born

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Lennon's new son has the same birthday as his dad. Sean Ono Lennon, 8 pounds, 10 ounces, was born to the former Beatle and his wife, Yoko Ono, Thursday.

Lennon was 35 Thursday.

Leon Wildes, their attorney, said Sean was born in New York Hospital at 2 a.m. Wildes quoted Lennon as calling his son an "all-American boy."

A Party for Warhol: 'This Is Like a Movie'

WASHINGTON (WP) — "Is this," asked Andy Warhol, shuffling from foot to foot in the corner of Peter Malatesta's living room, "a typical Washington party?"

The host, a former Spiro Agnew aide, was standing at the front door wearing a blue velvet jacket and a microphone. Kleig lights lit up the front hallway and a camera crew followed guests around the room. Conversations were held over round foam rubber microphones on poles interjected in intimate little groupings.

Waiters served Chinese hors d'oeuvres with printed paper napkins from the catering restaurant. Ambassadors and senators come, gathering in the centre of the room so as not to be missed by the cameras.

Reporters hovered around the honored guests with notebooks, pouncing on every word for a possible lead, scrambling to beat each other out of a juicy tidbit.

The answer to Andy Warhol's question was yes.

He, by the way, was the guest of honor. Next to him, holding on to his arm most of the evening, was a tall attractive bosomy young woman in a clinging red matte jersey dress. Her name was Lady Anne Lambton; she is the daughter of Lord Lambton, who resigned from the British government in 1973 because of a sex scandal. "She is my bodyguard," explained Warhol. "She keeps strange people away from me. She scares them with her British accent."

Most of the people at the party were a little scared of him. Well, you know he's got this reputation for being a little strange himself. But from an observer's point of view Andy Warhol, 48, was the most normal person at the party.

People would gingerly come up to speak to him, try to make inane conversation the way people do to be polite, and he would respond politely. Then there would be some small silence and they would ease away smiling.

Someone asked Warhol at one point while he was standing in the corner if he didn't want to venture into the centre of the room to meet people. "I don't want to meet anybody," he said. Quite simply.

He clutched his famous tape recorder to him at all times. "I just like to carry it around," he said. Was it on? Pause. "No."

The party, in honor of his new book "The Philosophy of Andy Warhol (From A to B and Back Again)", was given Tuesday night by Peter Malatesta. It was arranged by Warhol's old friend Firooz Zahedi, cousin of the Iran ambassador Ardeshir Zaahedi. "I just tap danced around Washington and said who wants to give a party for Andy," said Firooz. "Peter knows the crowd in Washington and he said he could put it together."

The party was being filmed by Clare Crawford for NBC's Weekend. Warhol is just finishing up a book tour, he said, and he's doing a lot of autographing parties but no television. "I don't go on TV because if I did it would ruin the whole thing."

For a while, he sat on the sofa with Lady Lambton, who is here "seeing America," it was explained, then moved into a tiny side room off the dining room for a little more privacy before a buffet dinner was served.

He found his little getaway, but soon the swarms were upon him. Sen. Jacob Javits (Rep-N.Y.) arrived and moved in to chat with Warhol. Mrs. Martha Reed, with masses of red hair and pearls ("I'm from new York, Paris and Monte Carlo"), was thrilled. She had just been asked if she was an Andy Warhol superstar and was inching over to "tell Andy."

"This is the most garish circus I've ever seen," said one guest. "A nightmare," said another. "Appealing," said a third, going back for another drink.

"I think Washington parties are the best in the world," said Martha Reed. "Better than Paris, New York or Monte Carlo." And Warhol? "This reminds me of yesterday. When I don't want anyone to talk to me I walk down the street talking to myself and they think I'm crazy. Yesterday in New York this man heard fire engines and thought the police were coming after him, and he was screaming until he realized that it was a fire. People though he was crazy. It was like a movie. This is all unreal. This is like a movie."

Truscott Backs Hanging

TORONTO — Steyen Truscott, who at 14 was sentenced to hang for the 1959 rape-murder of a 12-year-old girl, said Thursday he supports capital punishment in cases of absolute proof.

Capital punishment should not be applied in cases where circumstantial evidence is involved, he said in a copyright interview by Toronto radio station CHUM.

In his first radio interview since his parole in 1969, Truscott also said that after talks with fellow prisoners, he feels most criminals consider capital punishment a deterrent only when they are caught.

Now living under an assumed name, Truscott is married and the father of two children.

After 16 years, he maintains he is innocent of the murder of Lynne Harper who was found strangled in a wooded area near Clinton, Ont., 45 miles northwest of London.

Psychiatrists attempted to gain a confession with treatments of LSD and pentathol but were unsuccessful "because I wasn't guilty," he said.

Also interviewed by CHUM-FM news director Brian Thomas, Mrs. Truscott said she believes firmly in her husband's innocence.

"There's no way that I could live with a man who had raped and murdered a 12-year-old girl," she said.

Thomas, who spent several days with the Truscott family before taping the interview last month, said the interview was sparked by release of the Canadian movie, Recommendation for Mercy, inspired by the 30-day trial.

Truscott said the movie gave a "good insight of approximately what it was like." He said he and his wife seldom discuss the case and he has just learned to live with it.

He said he is "reasonably happy" and "quite successful in living a normal life" but is worried about the security and privacy of his family.

His two pre-school children do not know about their father's past and will be told when they are "12 or 13" Mrs. Truscott said.

Truscott has some ideas about the identity of Lynne Harper's murderer but no positive proof.

"I have strong feelings, the same as everybody else," he said.

LA COSTA, Calif. — Former U.S. president Richard Nixon, looking much healthier, played three days of golf this week, including 18 holes Thursday with Frank Fitzsimmons, president of the Teamsters union.

Observers, including a golf pro who has seen Nixon play before, said he appeared to have put on weight and recovered much of his health after his almost fatal bout with phlebitis a little more than a year ago.

"He looked greet," said Bob Dachman, executive director of the Little City Home for retarded children in Palatine, Ill. "You wouldn't know anything had been wrong with him."

WASHINGTON — Elder statesman Averell Harriman, who will be 84 next month, is in hospital here suffering from two broken pelvic bones and chipped fracture of the right elbow suffered when he stumbled and fell on the steps of his Georgetown home Monday afternoon.

And, like any other broken-field runner, she went to the Washington Redskins football team doctor to get it fixed up in time to dance that evening's "La Bayadere."

RALEIGH, N.C. — North Carolina State University professor Bob Ramsay has been arrested after trying to jog around the school's track field while the football team was practising. Officials feared he was a football spy from another college.

NORTH VANCOUVER — Jack Davis, former federal environment minister, has been actively campaigning as a Social Credit candidate in the North Vancouver-Seymour provincial riding.

Davis, a long-time Liberal, announced last month that he had resigned from the party and joined Social Credit.

He said today in an interview that although he has not been nominated as Social Credit candidate in North Vancouver-Seymour, he has been "knocking on doors" in the riding at the request of the constituency association.

LUCKY IN MONEY, UNLUCKY IN LOVE

CASTLEFORD, England (UPI) — Vivian Shaw's ship came in 1961 and things have gone downhill ever since.

Things seemed to be looking up when her husband, Keith, who earned $16.80 a week as a coal miner, won $364,800 in a soccer pool.

"I'll spend and spend and spend," said the delighted Mrs. Nicholson.

Then:

—Keith was killed in an auto accident.

—Vivian married Brian Wright in 1969 but split up with him after 13 weeks.

—Wright was killed in an auto accident.

—Vivian reported she had spent all the winnings.

She married Peter Ellison but they separated after 11 months and were divorced.

—She married Norman Shaw, 32, her fifth husband, eight weeks ago.

—Shaw collapsed and died Wednesday night.

"That money has been a curse," Vivian, 39, said Thursday. "I haven't had a day's luck since I got it."

NATO Up in Arms Over Netherlands Cuts

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — The Netherlands is planning defence cut swhich NATO secretary-general Joseph Luns, a Dutchman, warns may establish a dangerous precedent for other NATO countries and jeopardize Western security.

The Socialist-led government is also reported under fire from its outraged armed forces and some of its NATO allies.

The government plans to reduce the number of Neptune maritime reconnaissance planes in its sea patrol fleet to two from 15 and to scrap its naval flagship, a guided-missle cruiser.

The cuts, although saving only $90 million in defence spending for 1976, are seen by experts here and in NATO as a blow to the alliance's capability.

Luns accused Holland of proceeding without consulting its 14 allies and described the reductions as completely unjustified and only the tip of an iceberg of similar planned economies.

The cuts sparked off widespread protests by Dutch military officials.

In one spectacular stunt, a formation of four Neptune aircraft roared low over the parliament buildings the day after the cuts were announced, embarrassing Socialist Defence Minister Henk Vredeling.

In Ottawa, Defence Minister James Richardson said Thursday he will recommend to the cabinet that the Canadian forces in Europe remain as a mixed air and land force.

At a news conference held jointly by Richardson and United States air secretary, John L. McLucas, the minister said he made up his own mind in advance of a cabinet study of defence structure review, but added that he has support from other cabinet ministers.

He expressed confidence that he can convince his cabinet colleagues to accept his recommendation, which would end months of speculation of the role Canada will play in NATO.

At present Canada has 5,000 troops in Europe, half air element and half land. The government has been reassessing its NATO role as part of an over-all defence structure review.

Europeans and Americans have expressed concern that the country was planning to reduce its role. But the government, intent on improving relations with Europe, has give assurances its role will not be reduced.

But there has been consideration whether to go to an all-air or all-land force.

At the same time the government has been reviewing whether to alter its 1970 decision to drop the tank.

In connection with the latter decision, Richardson indicated that a decision to continue the land role in Europe means that the forces will retain the tank.

NO TESTIMONY

CALGARY (CP(— The two survivors of the Panarctic plane crash in the Arctic will not testify when the inquest resumes in Yellowknife Oct. 29, Milt Harradence, their lawyer, said Thursday night.

Co-pilot David Hatton and flight engineer Gary Weyman were the only survivors of the crash of a Panarctic Oils Ltd. Lockheed Electra a year ago.

Oil Self-Sufficiency 'Costly'

CALGARY (CP) — A University of British Columbia economics professor said Thursday that a deliberate attempt to retain energy self-sufficiency is "too costly and not in the national interest."

Instead, Dr. Anthony Scott proposed, at a conference on the economics of oil and gas self-sufficiency in Canada, a "policy of flexibility" which he said could better serve Canada's over-all interest.

To a bewildered audience, mostly oilmen, Dr. Scott said "deliberate self-sufficiency is too costly and too extreme a policy to serve a limited purpose."

He said to retain self-sufficiency in energy, "Canada must sacrifice or forgo opportunities to do other things.

"Workers will be diverted from providing other goods and services, directly or indirectly consumed by Canadians, into serving the self-sufficiency investments. Capital too will be diverted from Canadian money markets to these projects."

Dr. Scott called the self-sufficiency policy "pointless" because "it would not gain us permanent independence but only temporary security.

"As soon as the newly-developed frontier and secondary sources were exhausted, we would, as a country, have recourse again to foreign supplies. For these reasons I reject the goal of self-sufficiency and suggest instead what is needed is a policy of flexibility."

Murder Outrages Romans

ROME (Reuter)—The sadistic murder of an 18-year-old girl—who was reported to have been tortured and sexually assaulted by as many as 20 youths for 12 hours before she died—has caused an outcry here because all the suspects are from rich families.

"Idle, privileged, depraved, protected by money and by judges with Fascist sympathies," was how outraged parish priest Pierlugig Occelli, 72, described the killers at an emotional funeral ceremony for the girl.

His words summed up what many Romans think of the youths they call "Pariolini," after the smart Parioli residential area of the city where they live.

Arrogant, amoral and idle are some of the epithets used to describe the teenagers who hang around bars every evening with their new cars or powerful motorcycles.

Four youths have been arrested in connection with the murder—all of them Pariolini.

Two of them, both aged 20, are convicted rapists. All, according to press reports, are known to police as Fascist hoodlums.

Behind the outrage and horror at the crime itself is a question similar to the one asked in the United States after the Manson murders in California. Why do they do it?

Rosaria and her friend, Donatella Colasanti, were picked up on ther way home from the movies.

Scotch Gets Unfair Shake

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadian provincial governments discriminate against scotch whisky, says Col. Bill Brewster, director-general of the Scotch Whisky Association of Edinburgh.

Col. Brewster made the comment during a visit to Canada, where he talked with provincial and federal government officials about the problems of the scotch whisky industry.

"Liquor control authorities in certain provinces have imposed higher markups on scotch than domestic whiskies," he said.

"We're also concerned about Canada's metrication and bilingual labelling laws."

Forty years ago, scotch accounted for 70 per cent of all whisky sales in Canada, but today domestic Canadian whiskies claim 85 per cent of the market.

Outside Britain, the largest market for scotch is the United States, followed by Japan, Italy, France, West Germany and Austria. Canada rates seventh.

One of the scotch whisky industry's biggest problems is storage, he said, because by law scotch must mature at least three years before it can be sold and many brands are matured even longer.

UFO Trip Just Hoax?

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Well, here's another theory about the 20 people who disappeared from Oregon's Lincoln County in search of another planet.

Doug Baker, a columnist for the Oregon Journal, says the UFO story is "nothing more than a wild and wonderful hoax perpetrated by a pair of college students preparing a paper on 'psychological reactions to panic in a small American community'."

In Thursday's editions, Baker said "police, newspapers, TV and radio have been set up by perpetrators of the elaborate hoax, who confessed the scheme Tuesday to a prominent Waldport, Ore. citizen who chooses to remain anonymous."

DECISION

Ottawa, September 23, 1975

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announces the following decisions relating to applications heard at a public hearing commencing April 22, 1975 in Vancouver, B.C. for the renewal of cable television broadcasting licences serving areas of British Columbia.

At the hearing, consideration was given to the desirability of requiring licensees, by a condition of their licences, to delete commercial messages from television signals received from broadcasting stations not licensed to serve Canada and to substitute suitable replacement material in the place of such messages.

The Commission has reviewed its position concerning commercial deletion and substitution and has concluded that it remains an appropriate and necessary means to implement the policy objectives for the Canadian broadcasting system which are set out in the Broadcasting Act. It is therefore a condition of each of the following licences renewed by the Commission that the licensees shall implement the process of commercial deletion and substitution as described above after notice in writing from the Commission.

The Commission expects that the process of commercial deletion and substitution will be carried out by each of the cable television licensees in the Vancouver and Victoria areas listed below, pursuant to agreements between them and licensees of television broadcasting undertakings serving these cities. Such agreements should provide for the construction of all facilities required to carry out the process as well as for the sharing of costs.

The commission recognizes that sufficient time will be required for licensees to co-ordinate efforts and develop plans in such a way that the process may be performed efficiently at a reasonable cost and without disruption to the service now being provided to subscribers. The Commission will accordingly require the licensees to report by December 31, 1975, on their progress in completing all necessary arrangements and the timing for the implementaiton of the process.

It is a further condition of each of these licences that the licensees continue to own, as a minimum, the local head-end, the amplifiers and the drops to houses and apartment buildings.

DECISION CRTC 75-430

Before The Judge

An 18-year-old Victoria girl who cashed 19 worthless cheques in a month pleaded guilty in provincial court Thursday and was remanded for pre-sentence report.

Laura Suzanne Carey, 551 Manchester, cashed the cheques in Victoria, Sidney and Vancouver stores late in June and early July to get $700 worth of food, clothing and goods including setereo equipment.

Defence lawyer Terry O'Grady told the court Carey is temporarily with her sister in Osoyoos and has parents living near Victoria.

"As so often happens, the young woman comes from a good home and was raised by conscientious parents," he said. "It's a matter of bad companions — and that's an understatement."

Judge Harold Alder said "the community has been victimized," but granted O'Grady's request to free her on bail.

She will be sentenced Nov. 7.

The driver told police he had never seen the man before.

A man who pleaded guilty to performing an indecent act and who told the court he wanted psychiatric help was remanded to Oct. 30 for pre-sentence report.

Michael Anthony Tiffin of Victoria exposed himself to a woman and her young daughter at Beaver Lake Aug. 12 when he approached them with his bathing suit pulled down.

Tiffin told police who arrested him, "I must have a problem."

He told the judge he thought psychiatric help obtained through the courts would help him because he wouldn't be able to back out of it.

Jay Dancey, 18, of 1286 Holloway, will pay $170.80 and do 10 hours' community work for breaking windows at the Jehovah's Witnesses Kingdom Hall, 2780 Shelbourne.

He pleaded guilty to wilful damage after throwing objects through the windows Oct. 6 at 9:30 pm.

Judge Alder refused Prosecutor Peter Hull's request that Dancey pay $479.92 which would also pay for labor to clean up the hall.

An unemployed furrier with no money besides the $21 police found in his pockets will spend five days in jail for stealing two steaks from a Langford grocery.

High Food Prices Help Push Refrigerator Buying

By LYNNE GORDON

As food prices continue thier steady climb, more consumers are turning to bulk buying, canning and freezing foods.

Many consumers, however, don't have the time for canning nor do they have the space in their homes for a freezer.

The solution for many may be in a new refrigerator that has a large fjeezer capacity in which it's possible to deep freeze foods.

No one, of course, is going to lay out $400 to $500 on a new refrigeratorr just to save a few dollars on the weekly grocery bill. But considering that there are more than two million refrigerators over 10 years old in Canadian households, within the next five years replacement refrigerators will need to be purchased.

That will be the time to take advantage of the technological developments in refrigeration that have occurred over the last 10 years. A refrigerator is no longer just a standard three shelves, an "ice box" and a butter-holder. Certainly the standard refrigerator is still available but more sophisticated units with special features to fill every need, are capturing a large share of the market.

There are no-frost or frost-free refrigerators, foamed-in place insulation and fibre-glass insulation, ice-makers, butter-conditioners and seven-day meat keepers. Some of these features are beneficial and worth the extra cost, while others remain luxuries.

The question is: What do you need and want in a refrigerator?

That depends on your life-style, number of people in your family, your shopping habits and cooking habits. For example, do you want to freeze quantities of food over a long period of time?

If you do, you'll need a unit with a dual temperature control, which means that you can regulate the temperature in the freezer separate from the temperature in the fresh food section. This makes it possible to deep freeze food in the same way as you would in a separate freezer unit hidden away in the basement.

Since the temperature for long-term storage must be at or below zero degrees F. or — 18 degrees C., at all times, the unit should also be frost-free or no-frost. A no-frost unit defrosts itself regularly without the need to turn the unit off for the frequent and time-consuming chore.

The largest freezer (eight to 12 cubic feet) is available in the side-by-side model. Disadvantages of the side-by-side model compared with the top-freezer model, according to U.S. Consumer Reports, are that they are more expensive to buy and to operate and they have a higher frequency of repairs. A side-by-side model also usually requires more space and might not fit into the same space occupied by the old refrigerator in the kitchen.

The same problem may be presented by some of the larger top-freezer models. Refrigerators on the whole are not only better, they're bigger: As wide as 32 inches and as high as 60 inches.

If you choose one of these large refrigerators, be prepared to consider the cost of alternations such as moving a wall, taking out an overhead cupboard or shortening a counter, when calculating the total cost of a new refrigerator. If you don't want to go into the expense of alternations, make sure that the unit you choose will fit the space left by your old refrigerator.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

The inside capacity of refrigerators has been increased in ways other than simply making the unit bigger inside and out.

The development of the forced-draft system (on the bottom of the unit) to replace the natural draft system (along the back of the unit) increased the space inside.

Insulation has been developed in such a way that inside capacity is increased. Fibreglass sheets three inches thick on all sides have been changed to one and a half inch thick pressed fibreglass or one inch thick liquid polyurethane that's poured between the inner and outer wall of the refrigerator. The polyurethane insulation also gives a sturdier outside wall that's less likely to dent if a three-year-old runs into it with a tricycle.

Operating costs on larger refrigerators and side-by-side models are higher than on the basic top-freezer model. A no-frost unit also uses two or three cents worth more energy a day than manual, automatic or combination defrost units. Chalk up a few more cents a day for every gadget like an ice-maker or butter conditioner.

It's difficult to put an exact figure on operating costs since kilowatt hours vary from region to region. How much energy is used by your refrigerator also depends on the number of people in your family, how frequently the door is opened, the size of the unit and how much food is in the refrigerator. Every time you put something warm in the unit, or open the door, the compressor starts running. When the compressor is running, it's consuming electricity and is adding to your electric bill.

Energy labelling for refrigerators is under careful study by the federal consumer department and the appliance industry. Energy labelling, while it will be a useful indicator of operating costs, will also add to the initial cost of buying a refrigerator. The price will go up by about six or seven dollars a unit because of the cost of setting up testing facilities. Energy labelling is expected to be effective sometime in 1976.

Since there are still millions of refrigerators in Canadian homes that need to be defrosted manually, it's worth considering a few hazards in defrosting. You should never use a knife or a sharp object to free the ice in a freezer. The knife can scratch the lining and thus speed up rust and corrosion. Worse yet, the knife can put a hole in the freezer coils, which are filled with a freon gas. Evenutally the whole unit may have to be replaced but meanwhile there is the danger of the freon gas seeping into the food and causing food poisoning.

You should also never put anything hotter than a pot of hot water in the freezer to speed the defrosting. Hair dryers or electric fans placed inside the freezer can result in electric shocks. Ice melts into water — and water associated with electricity spells danger.

A refrigerator is an important purchase since it will be in your home for well over 10 years. Consider carefully what you want a refrigerator to do for you and whether the "extras" are worth the additional expense when buying and operating a refrigerator in your home.

She Gets Taste of Back Home From New Postage Stamps

Victoria Times
THIRD SECTION family

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Licking one of the new Canadian ships postage stamps gives Mrs. William Farquhar a taste of her turn-of-the-century home on the Bay of Fundy.

The 83-year-old former school teacher was born Smith, one of a shipbuilding and seafaring family in Maitland, Nova Scotia, where the largest wooden ship in the world was launched.

One of the current eight-cent issue bearing likenesses of windjammers and early steamers in the William D. Lawrence, dream ship of the builder who gave it his name, and known throughout the Maritimes as The Great Ship.

"Maitland people are pretty proul of that ship," said Mrs. Farquhar, who has lived in Victoria since 1923 and maintains a lasting interest in the nation's maritime heritage.

She cites, besides her own grandfather Bowden Smith, Fundy ship builders like Putnam, Ellis, Roy, MacDougall, Monteith, McCallum, Douglas, O'Brien and Lawrence — the biggest of them all.

Between them they accounted for a large part of the world's merchant shipping tonnage ships that gained international reputation for design, craftmanship, materials and speed.

Between 1840 and 1890 it is said more tonnage was owned by Nova Scotians than any other national or regional group.

Vessels were built of native spruce and pine lining the hills sloping away from Fundy near communities such as Maitland, Noel, Great Village, Bass River, Five Islands, Portaupique, Clifton and Truro.

The most active time for these little shipyards was the 40 years spanning Confederation, which Lawrence, for one, opposed.

Ironically, it is the federal government which has taken over Capt. Lawrence's large white house at Maitland, to preserve it as a maritime museum to the era of wooden ships.

Lawrence sailed his 2,858-ton ship for eight years, amassing a modest fortune in the South American trade, then sold her to Norwegian owners 10 years before Mrs. Farquhar was born in 1892.

Shipbuilding by then had declined in Maitland, but she recalls vessels being built at East Noel, remembers Lawrence's son William and went to school with granddaughter Abbie.

Launching a ship was a momentous event for not only the shipwrights, carpenters and iron workers, but for the entire village and residents for miles around.

"When they knocked out these chocks and they went down the greased way, it was a beautiful sight ... They knew how to build ships, believe me," Mrs. Farquhar said.

According to the Journal of Education, May 1967, "The designing, building and operating of the Great Ship by William Lawrence of Maitland must be reckoned as the most impressive single chapter in the long and splendid story of wooden ships in Nova Scotia."

Canada Post office agrees.

Heredity Top Cause Of Heart Disease

CHICAGO (UPI) — Heredity, not eating or smoking habits, is the prime cause of heart disease, according to Dr. Christian Barnaard, the surgeon who performed the first successful heart transplant operation Dec. 3, 1967.

During a news conference at Edgewater Hospital, Barnaard said persons who attribute heart disease to obesity, high cholesterol levels and heavy smoking "don't know what they're talking about."

He said overeating and smoking are contributing factors rather than the major cause of heart disease, but added, "anything in excess is bad."

Barnaard was conferring with Dr. Maurice S. Masel at the hospital about a blood clot dissolving drug called urokinase which Masel is researching.

Barnaard, director of surgical research at Groote Schuur Hospital in Capetown, South Africa, has performed 14 heart transplants. He is now researching the problems of being unable to preserve hearts after the death of a donor.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I was a divorcee with six children for nine years. Then I married a man who is 10 years my junior. My two youngest children made their home with us. (All of the others were on their own.)

The last two are now 17 and 18 and neither is sufficiently mature to leave home. Maybe it's my fault for not pushing them hard enough, but the fact remains that they still need me.

My husband has issued an ultimatum: "Either your kids go or I do. I am tired of supporting them!"

Abby, my love for this man is indescribably, but I can't send my children away.

How much do I owe my husband? My children? Myself? —TORN APART

DEAR TORN: In my opinion, a man who would give his wife such an ultimatum knows that she will choose her children—which is what I think he really wants.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and my boyfriend is 22. We've gone together for a year. He lives 30 miles from my home and drives over to be with about four times a week.

He says he loves me, but we sure do fight a lot. And every time we have a fight, he asks me to give him all the presents back that he gave me, plus a cheque to cover the expense of gas for all the trips he made to see me.

Do you think we should take a vacation from each other for a while?

He wants to marry me, but I'm not sure we can get along with each other. If we do break up, should I return his gifts plus the money for his gas?—CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: A "vacation" from each other is a splendid idea. Date others and hope that he grows up in the meantime. If you break up, return his gifts and tell him the gas was on him.

SNOW IS FORECAST for the weekend, so eight-year-old Fred Boyko decided his dad, Eugene, might need a hand getting in the crop. But there is little chance an early winter will damage the Boyko crops — or any others in the Edmonton area. Harvesting is almost complete.

Hints on Vegetable Shortening

At one time almost everyone cooked with lard . . . but now a great number of folks use nothing but Crisco or one of the other vegetable shortenings. If you're in the latter group — or getting there — the following hints are handy to know:

When using vegetable shortening in place of butter, add one level teaspoonful of salt to each cupful of the shortening.

When there is smoke in the kitchen, the shortening has burned or heated too high for frying. Or, some may have been on the outside of the pan or kettle.

When using vegetable shortening in your regular recipes remember that — since it contains no moisture — it is much richer than butter and, therefore, 1/5 less should be used.

In making sauces, thoroughly blend the flour and lard substitute before adding the milk. When using melted vegetable shortening in boiled dressing, croquettes, rolls, fritters, etc., be sure that the shortening is cooled sufficiently so that the hot fat will not injure the texture of the foods. Shortening, like butter, is susceptible to heat and cold. When it's too hard simply put it in a warm place.

Welch Medical Report

Many North Americans with severe bronchial asthma have to take the considerable risk of suffering toxic side effects that go along with the prolonged use of adrenal cortical hormone in order to avoid being wholly disabled or struck down by their disease.

Tens of thousands of asthmatics unresponsive to other measures depend on the double-edged effect of adrenal steroids to keep symptoms at bay.

Since adrenal steroids taken by mouth tend to depress the capacity of the body to produce its own steroid and as there are many other serious adverse reactions, experts in the treatment of asthma have followed with great interest the appearance in England of beclomethasone. It is a steroid that can be inhaled with an aerosol puff, stops bronchial wheezing and is not appreciably absorbed into the system, thus avoiding the problem of adverse side effects.

For more than three years, according to Dr. Francis Lowell and Dr. William Franklin of Boston, Mass., the wide use of beclomethasone in England has revolutionized the management of asthma in that country.

With the daily inhalation of beclomethasone it is often possible to reduce or eliminate entirely the need for steroids; asthmatic symptoms are kept under control and the problems of toxic side effects are eliminated.

Like many other useful medications used elsewhere in the civilized world, beclomethasone has not yet been approved for use in the United States by the Food and Drug Administration. The reason for the failure of official approval by the FDA has little to do with the drug's recognized clinical usefulness. Highly politicized confusion has informed the question of the use and safety of drugs in this country since the wide concern over the "thalidomide" disaster.

Over the years, it has been increasingly apparent that the FDA lives with an understandable hesitancy about all drugs lest they inadvertently approve another thalidomide. The resulting backlog of unapproved but clinically effective agents, of which beclomethasone is one, is considerable.

One study from Montreal and another conducted jointly by doctors in Massachusetts and New York, reported at a recent meeting of the American Academy of Allergy in San Diego, Calif., gave persuasive evidence that verifies the British experience with beclomethasone.

Further studies will certainly be forthcoming and it is hoped that approval by the FDA will not be unduly delayed.

Guns, Escapes B.C. Pen Woes

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Stories of gun smuggling and escape bids were related in federal court Thursday as Fred Leech security chief at the British Columbia Penitentiary, explained why prisoners were kept in solitary confinement for varying periods.

Eight penitentiary prisoners have charged that the solitary confinement unit is cruel and unusual punishment under the Canadian Bill of Rights. The civil action's three weeks of testimony concluded Thursday.

Leech said he had received a report from a staff member that a handgun was to be brought into the penitentiary an dtransferred to prisoner Walter Dudoward "for the purpose of assassinating two of my supervisors."

Leech said there was no conclusive evidence linking Dudoward but "the staff member involved must have realized I was on his tail because he quit."

Lawyer Donald Sorochan said Dudoward was on the prisoner committee during a prison disturbance in October, 1973, and put into solitary along with the other committee members. Leech said he did not recall if all of the committee members were put in solitary, but that the majority were.

Leech also said seven or eight prisoners were involved in an escape attempt that planned to take over the prison hospital and call an outside ambulance. He said a prisoner informed the staff about the plan and named Jack McCann as one of the conspirators.

Sorochan, acting for McCann, said it was only allegation that linked McCann to the plan.

Leech said McCann had escaped in May, 1974, after he was released from 11 months of solitary, after leaving a dummy in his cell.

He said Ralph Cochrane, another plaintiff, was suspected of being "one of the heavies" in the prison and with influence on other prisoners. He was transferred to Dorchester Prison in Dorchester, N.B. for 90 days.

He said Cochrane was put into solitary after his return from Dorchester because he suspected Cochrane was involved in the October, 1973, disturbance.

Leech said guards were sometimes searched for drugs on entering the prison and the staffing problem "would be greatly accentuated," if guards had to submit to skin searches.

Final arguments will resume Dec. 1.

MAN DIES OF BURNS FROM BLAST

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A North Vancouver man injured last week in an explosion and fire at Burrard Terminals Ltd., died Thursday in hospital.

John Sculley, 57, died of burn injuries suffered Friday during explosions in the grain elevator. Fifteen other workers were injured.

The body of Edward Hooper of North Vancouver, a grain weighman who was blown through a window by the explosion, was still missing.

Police said an inquest will be held Oct. 27.

Taxes Higher Despite Vote

Vancouverites will face higher taxes despite their rejection of the city's proposed $58.8 million five-year plan.

Defeat of the plebiscite means the city cannot borrow the $58.8 million, but certain projects deemed essential under the plan will now have to be alternatively financed out of current revenues.

The city has not ruled out the possibility of re-submitting the five-year plan at some time in the future.

But for the moment officials have been instructed to list the priorities and introduce recommendations for budgeting on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Voters rejected the proposed plan Wednesday by 54.4 per cent.

The final count was 31,104 to 25,020 as about a fifth of The city's 258,000 eligible voters cast ballots.

The plan which would have provided borrowing power for capital projects in the period from 1976 to 1980, was $6.8 million less than one defeated by voters 11 months ago.

The plan sought funds for public safety and health facilities along with local improvements such as parks, improved street lighting and roads.

Mayor Art Phillips said the result was indicative of a trend to cut back on government spending at all levels but some of the health and safety items could be financed out of current revenues and proceeds from land sales.

Costly B.C. Taxes On Gas Pipeline?

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Concern was expressed here Thursday that the British Columbia government will impose costly taxes on a Mackenzie Valley natural gas pipeline.

The concern came from congressman John Melcher, a Montana Democrat, who presided at a public hearing on Arctic pipeline proposals.

Melcher said that the provisions of a pipeline treaty under negotiation between the U.S. and Canada would not prevent provincial governments from levying taxes.

Such taxes, he said, would include:

—A property tax;

—A special B.C. government tax on fuel necessary to operate the pipeline.

Melcher and other members of a House of Representatives subcommitte on lands also expressed concern about the claims of Canadian native Indians holding up construction of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline.

They were questioning government officials about the merits of rival proposals for an Arctic pipeline—the Mackenzie route through Canada and an "all-American" route across Alaska.

They also heard a proposal from the Federal Power Commission to speed up implementation of the decision on which route the U.S. should back, one which would restrict the right of opponents to take actions in the courts.

And they heard a government official dangle some "secondary benefits" to the U.S. in the Alaskan route.

The treaty has been held up because Ottawa failed to satisfy the U.S. on language respecting provincial taxing powers.

But Melcher said Katz's answers, apparently phrased "to be certain you don't offend Canadian officials," had left him "feeling the treaty is not very certain."

"There are no insuperable problems that I'm aware of," said Katz.

He said a separate protocol would probably be required to deal with the Mackenzie Valley project.

Wives' Pensions Dashed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Housewives should not hold their breath waiting for Canada Pension Plan benefits, Human Resources Minister Norm Levi said Thurday.

Levi said that as long as Canada permits private pension plans to play a major role in the counrtry's pension contribution plan there is no immediate hope for pensions to homemakers.

He told a meeting sponsored by the University of B.C. women's resource centre, that the provincial government has strongly suggested to federal Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde that the Canada Pension Plan should also look at provision of adequate pension for surviving spouses who are not plan contributors.

He accused Lalonde of being more interested in the survival of private pension plans, becasue of the $22 billion annual investment controlled by private plan companies.

"These companies have a very strong lobby in Ottawa," Levi said.

He said a B.C. government proposal to increase CPP contributions by 19 per cent would extend benefits to spouses of contributors.

U.S. Tracks Closed To Royal Hudson

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A Burlington Northern spokesman said Thursday the company won't allow the Royal Hudson, the British Columbia government's steam locomotive, to use its tracks to Seattle from North Vancouver for a meeting with the steam-driven American Freedom Train.

Richard A. Beulke, BN regional vice-president, said in a telephone interview from Yakima, Wash., the Royal Hudson was refused permission because it might derail on BN property.

The steam train has carried 69,000 people this year on its run between here and Squamish, 40 miles to the north.

Robert Swanson, B.C. Rail director, said he wanted to take 700 people to Seattle on Nov. 1 to meet a former Southern Pacific locomotive pulling a train commemorating the United States bicentenary.

"We no longer operate passenger services and lack the facilities to operate and maintain steam equipment," Beulke said.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Without any doubt, the most important trick in the play of the cards is trick one. But there are days when, on any given deal, trick two becomes primary in importance. Such was the case in today's deal, which arose in the Spingold Knockout Team-of-Four Championships, held during the 1975 Summer National Championships in Miami Beach.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

	NORTH ♠ K J 10 ♥ J 9 8 4 ♦ J 5 3 2 ♣ 8 5
WEST ♠ Q 6 ♥ K 7 ♦ Q 10 6 ♣ A K J 6 4 3		EAST ♠ A 9 8 5 3 ♥ 5 3 2 ♦ 9 8 4 ♣ 10 7
	SOUTH ♠ 7 4 2 ♥ A Q 10 6 ♦ A K 7 ♣ Q 9 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Sitting West and East, respectively, were Dick Katz and Larry Cohen, two members of the team captained by Dr. Jorge Rosenkranz, of Mexico City. After winning the opening lead with his king of clubs, Katz thought for a few moments — and then led the six of spades. South now thought much longer, and finally decided that West, for his original double, rated to have the ace of spades. So she put up dummy's king. It was a wrong decision, for East had the ace. East returned his remaining club, and West rattled off five more club tricks.

South, called upon to make three discards on West's club leads, tossed away two hearts and the seven of diamonds. After running his clubs, West led a diamond to South's king. South then played a spade, West's queen winning, after which West exited with another diamond to South's ace. Later West won a trick with his heart king, and declarer suffered a three-trick set, for a loss of 500 points.

When the deal was replayed with Dr. Rosenkranz sitting South and Roger Bates in the East seat, South opened the bidding with one club, which West overcalled with one no-trump. After North had passed, East bid two spades, which became the final contract.

After opening the diamond ace, Dr. Rosenbranz made the deceptive lead of the seven of diamonds. East now had to guess whether to play dummy's queen (hoping South had the king) or dummy's ten (hoping South had the jack). He guessed wrong by playing the ten. North won with the jack, and returned a diamond to South's king. In time, the defenders made the ace of hearts and two trump tricks, and declarer incurred a one-trick set.

Alan was examining the little charm. "A kalotan korbal, eh?" he commented. "Many thanks, but can you spare it?".

"Sure, I got plenty. They were cheap enough, 49 cents each the green and 45 cents the gold," replied Sam. "But there was something about the total. The dollars were the same as the number of gold I bought, and the cents as many as the number of greens."

How many of each did he buy?

Pollen's Leg Gets Pulled Over Edge

Ald. Bill Tindall did some verbal leg-pulling at Mayor Peter Pollen's expense Thursday, and raised a laugh at the city council meeting.

During debate on the controversial Sunday trading ban legislation, Tindall referred to the opposition that had been expressed by the Greater Victria Chamber of Commerce.

Then, after a perfectly-timed pause, he added: "I don't know whether you would recognize the organization under that title, your worship . . ."

He was obviously referring to Pollen's favorite description of the chamber — "the flat earth society."

City Gets Single Bid On Firehall

Only one bid was received by Victoria city council Thursday for the city's 83-year-old firehall at Burnside and Douglas.

Vancouver owners of the adjacent Intown Inn at 653 Dunedin submitted an offer of $135,000 for the building, which was vacated by the fire department about two years ago for new premises on Bay.

Then tender indicated the firm's proposal is to convert the structure to a restaurant.

Airline Shutdown By Pilots Oct. 18

MONTREAL (CP) — Air traffic in Canada will be paralysed Saturday, Oct. 18, because of a dispute over the use of French in air traffic control, it was announced today.

At a news conference, K. A. Malley, president of the Canadian Airline Pilots' Association (CALPA), expressed "regrets that such a protest is necessary."

CALPA has repeatedly stated that it feels bilingual air traffic control is unsafe.

The pilots have been sitting on a committee convened by the department of transport to examine the technical aspecs of bilingual air traffic control in Quebec.

The committee was dissolved Thursday without having reached any consensus, he said.

OTTAWA — New, tough Unemployment Insurance regulations are being considered by cabinet, according to government sources.

Out-of-work persons may be restricted to collecting a week of benefits for every week worked in the preceding 12 months and residents of provinces with a low jobless rate would collect fewer extended benefits than residents of high unemployment provinces.

Purpose of the changes, according to a source privy to the cabinet discussion on the economy Thursday, is not so much to save money for a government hard-pressed by high unemployment benefit costs but rather to remove a disincentive to work.

The federal government would save some money, however, while the provinces could be hit with higher welfare costs as a result.

Under the present regulations, an unemployed person can receive as much as 51 weeks benefits after eight weeks work. Under the proposed changes, a claimant would only receive the numbe of benefits equalling the number of weeks he had worked in the preceding 12 months.

The second proposal would link benefit rates to regional unemployment, rather than to national statistics, as is now the case.

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald used the term "frightening" — but Prime Minister Trudeau disagreed with him — as cabinet ministers talked into Thursday night about the new ammunition they will unveil next week for the battle against inflation and unemployment.

" . . . the kind of restraints we have in mind are unprecedented in peacetime," said Mr. Macdonald as he entered an evening cabinet session which virtually completed the government's proposals. "If you don't find it as frightening as I do, then let me know."

"I am surprised Mr. Macdonald would use those words. We're not trying to frighten anyone.

"We assume that people want the government to take action and that's what we're doing."

Meanwhile, with the proposals being kneaded into shape through the late-night cabinet session, Prime Minister Trudeau's office has booked time on national television so the prime minister can talk to the Canadian people Monday night after he spends a scheduled three hours with provincial premiers.

The broadcast, on the CBC, the CTV Television Network and Global, is set for 9 p.m. EDT, despite protests from opposition parties that "partisan" broadcasts should not be made on the eve of elections.

There are two federal byelections Tuesday.

The drama continued to build steadily Thursday as ministers dropped more hints of severe economic measures, as finance officials worked into the night on their assignments, as a team of writers stood by to put everything on paper and as corridors buzzed with reports of a new and mighty control board with power to roll back excessive increases in prices and incomes.

One reliable source said feelers were being put out for a chairman for the new board, which would likely swallow up the present Food Prices Review Board.

Beryl Plumptre, the chairman of the existing board, would retain a high-profile assignment in the new struc-

B.C. Steals A March On Ottawa

The B.C. government stole a march on Ottawa Thursday by publicizing a $150 million cut in this year's budget just prior to the Thanksgiving Day federal-provincial conference at which Prime Minister Trudeau will unveil his government's new economic plan.

Although the province initiated its budget cut-back last December, it had refused until now to give any details of what was involved.

The aim is a minimum cut of 5 per cent in previously planned spending of $3.25 billion, according to Finance Minister Dave Stupich.

This move combined with the strong measures taken this week to put 58,000 striking or locked-out workers back on their jobs, is expected to give Premier Dave Barrett a leading role in the Ottawa talks.

Stupich, who took over the finance portfolio from Barrett a week ago, said he hopes the budget will balance despite declining revenues caused by the forest industry situation.

He expects to trim about $60 million through reductions in the civil service and about $90 million from other expenditures in the fiscal year ending next March 31.

The savings are designed to balance the budget but Stupich said if revenues start to pick up later in the year the money will be spent to expand or start new programs.

Stupich said no one is being laid off under the scheme but, since there is usually a time lag representing 10 per cent of the work force between when a person leaves and is replaced, departments have been asked to stretch the lag to the equivalent of 25 per cent before re-hiring.

Thus a department could be down to 75 per cent of its regular size before new hiring takes place.

Stupich said that with the fiscal year half over, revenues are running just below half the budgeted figure but no specific figures are available.

He said revenues from sales and income taxes are close to expected levels, revenues from coal royalties and the B.C. Petroleum Corp. are expected to exceed expectations but forest revenues are significantly lower.

Total revenues could reach at least $3.1 billion, he said.

B.C. ferries and some government hospitals have been exempted from the ruling, the minister said. If the treasury board is convinced extra hiring is necessary, it will be approved.

Winter Ferries Cut

B.C. Ferries plans to return to a reduced schedule of sailings between Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland during the winter months.

Last year for the first time the ferries operated on an hourly basis throughout the winter but ferry officials said today the full service was not being used and some ferries were running nearly empty.

Traffic volumes actually decreased last winter compared to 1973, probably because of the increased cost of gasoline, and officials don't expect traffic to pick up this year.

B.C. Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher said not only did less people use the ferries afte the sailings were increased but the cost of overtime went up.

The new reduced sailing schedule is designed to meet peak needs and also to reduce working hours for employees to a straight 7½-hour shift, said Gallagher.

The winter schedule comes into effect in 10 days and will stay in effect until May 20, 1976.

On the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run six sailings will be eliminated from Monday to Thursday; with no service at 8 a.m., 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

This reduced schedule is the same as the winter service in effect in 1973.

Kissinger Conduct 'Shocking'

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The house select intelligence committee's final report on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will condemn him for conduct "much more shocking than the things I've examined within the CIA structure," says Rep. James V. Stanton, Dem—Ohio.

Stanton, who has no doubt the report will explode into a major issue in the upcoming presidential campaign, said the report — among other things — would reveal instances "where the secretary either misled or totally deceived congress."

"I think we're going to show examples of where he had information and could have acted with reasonable prudence to prevent certain events from occurring and he didn't allow the free flow of information to occur when it was within his power," Stanton said in a Washington interview published today by the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Two publicized examples of Kissinger's withholding or misusing vital information were negotiations involving Vietnam and Cyprus, according to Stanton, who refused to specify other accusations against Kissinger.

Stanton said he was bound by the committee's agreement with the Ford administration not to disclose details at this time.

B.C. Fed Alters Tack, IWA, Pulpmen on Job

A tentative agreement between B.C. forest companies and 29,000 IWA members, an about-face by the B.C. Federation of Labor and a recommendation that 13,000 striking pulp workers get back on the job will soon have the province's major industry back in business.

Labor federation President Len Guy earlier said the back-to-work legislation should be fought in any possible way, but that stance was changed Thursday when the federation urged workers to return to work and comply with the bill.

The International Woodworkers of America agreement was reached Thursday evening, seconds before the industry and its major union would have felt the effects of the government's sweeping back-to-work legislation.

Shortly before the announcement of the tentative IWA settlement, leaders of B.C.'s two pulp unions said they are recommending that their members vote to comply with the government order and return to the jobs they left July 16 when the pulp strike began. There is little chance the pulp workers will vote against the recommendation.

IWA coast locals are now setting up ratification meetings, but will return to work in the meantime.

Details of the IWA contract package have not been released, but it is believed the settlement sticks closely to recommendations made in the report by special mediator Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon, including agreement on a two-year contract, instead of the one-year term the unions originally sought.

It is believed the settlement includes a $1.55 an hour wage increase over the two years, improvements in the cost-of-living adjustment clause in the second year of the contract, changes in pension plan provisions and weekly indemnity payments to sick workers.

The IWA was not on strike, but most of its members were off work because of pulp picket lines and poor market conditions.

Had the union not settled before the deadline of about 5:35 p.m. Thursday, provisions in the back-to-work bill for retroactive pay and no strike or lockout for 90 days would have applied.

The pulp unions' recommendation to return to work avoids a confrontation be-

CZ TAKE DROPS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited reported Thursday a sharp drop in earnings in the third quarter.

The company had net earnings for the quarter of $256,000 or three cents a share on sales of $64.4 million. This compares with net earnings of $4.2 million or 53 cents a share in the same period of 1974.

Net earnings for the nine months were $9.2 million or $1.15 per share on sales of $233.2 million, compared with net earnings of $16.1 million or $2.02 per share in the first nine months of last year.

Postal Workers To Get Report

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Post office administrators are sending local offices what they say is a complete summary of a conciliation report dealing with a contract dispute in the hopes that union members will reject a request from their leaders for strike authorization, a government spokesman said today.

The new summary, which will be available on request through post offices to the 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, differs from attempts by the government officials to correct "misleading" information sent by the union, he added.

Union leaders have begun a membership vote which should be complete by early next week. They are asking postal workers to give them a strike mandate unless the government accepts something close to their demands in contract talks.

If talks fail, there could be a strike by the latter part of next week if the members back their leaders.

The members have been asked to vote on the strike mandate, not the conciliation report prepared by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court.

"We want them to know what has been offered in the conciliation report before they throw it out and give the union leaders a strike mandate," the spokesman said. The government hopes the rank and file will not back a strike.

Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey will be in Victoria later today to speak to the annual convention of Canadian Postmasters Association at the Emdpress Hotel.

Mackasey will also hold a press conference on the labor troubles in the post offic.e

Mackasey said Thursday the government has a contingency plan to deliver pension and other benefit cheques in the event of a national postal strike.

"As long as I am postmaster general, no strike will interfere with the delivery of social benefit cheques," he said.

Meanwhile in Winnipeg, about 350 postal workers gave their national president a hearty round of applause Thursday night as he urged them to support a union strike vote.

Joe Davidson, president of the 22,000-member union, told the men: "Until we get what we want, we intend to fight like hell with this government"

BARRETT BOMB THREAT

VANDERHOOF (CP) — Two telephoned bomb threats were made Thursday against a school where Premier Barrett spoke.

The first threat against the Nechako Senior Secondary School was made during the day, causing some 600 students to be evacuated. A second threat was made before the premier spoke in the evening.

Police searched the building both times but no bomb was found.

RCMP in Vanderhoof refused to confirm or deny that a bomb threat had been made.

In the first part of the premier's fall tour there were signs of increased security after some threats were made against him but so far during the northern swing of his tour there has been little sign of RCMP protection.

Barrett was informed of the threat but he gave his address to 500 peope in the schoo gave hi saddress to 500 people in the school heckler.

Oil Stocks Decline At Dull Toronto

Volume by 2 p.m. shrank to 880,000 shares from 1.04 million at the same time Thursday. Falling issues outnumbered gains 152 to 131 with 205 shares unchanged.

Trading in shares of Daon Development Corp. was delayed from opening pending dissemination of news of capital reorganization. The company said its directors have approved a two-for-one stock split and the creation of class A preferred shares, both subject to shareholders approval. Daon Development closed Thursday at $97.

Among industrials, Hamilton Trust fell ⅝ to $10⅝, Pacific Pete ½ to $20¼, Woodward Stores A ½ to $18½, Alcan ½ to 20½ and Indusmin ⅝ to $7⅝.

Canadian General Electric rose 1 to $25, Rolland Paper A ½ to $7, Dylex A ⅜ to $7⅝, Kaiser Resources ¼ to $11½ and Calgary Power A ⅛ to $25⅜.

Falconbridge Copper lost ¼ to $6⅜ and Consolidated Canadian Faraday 12 cents to $2.83 while Camflo edged up ⅛ to $10⅝.

Losses among oil producers included United Canso, down ⅜ to $7⅜, Alberta Eastern ¼ to $7½ and PanCanadian Pete ⅛ to $17. Skye Resources was up 15 cents to $2.85.

New York

The stock market was mixed amid the counter-balancing influences of declining interest rates and concern over New York City's financial situation.

Gainers maintained a 4-to-3 lead in realtively light trading over losers in the over-all count at New York.

Airline Shutdown By Pilots Oct. 18

MONTREAL (CP) — Air traffic in Canada will be paralysed Saturday, Oct. 18, because of a dispute over the use of French in air traffic control, it was announced today.

At a news conference, K. A. Malley, president of the Canadian Airline Pilots' Association (CALPA), expressed "regrets that such a protest is necessary."

CALPA has repeatedly stated that it feels bilingual air traffic control is unsafe.

The pilots have been sitting on a committee convened by the department of transport to examine the technical aspects of bilingual air traffic control in Quebec.

The committee was dissolved Thursday without having reached any consensus, he said.

PLANS 'FRIGHTENING'—MACDONALD

Canada Gears for Austerity

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald used the term "frightening" — but Prime Minister Trudeau disagreed with him — as cabinet ministers talked into Thursday night about the new ammunition they will unveil next week for the battle against inflation and unemployment.

". . . the kind of restraints we have in mind are unprecedented in peacetime," said Mr. Macdonald as he entered an evening cabinet session which virtually completed the government's proposals. "If you don't find it as frightening as I do, then let me know."

Some four hours later, at midnight, the ministers emerged from their meeting and Mr. Trudeau disagreed with his finance minister's description of the measures.

"I am surprised Mr. Macdonald would use those words. We're not trying to frighten anyone.

"We assume that people want the government to take action and that's what we're doing."

Meanwhile, with the proposals being kneaded into shape through the late-night cabinet session, Prime Minister Trudeau's office has booked time on national television so the prime minister can talk to the Canadian people Monday night after he spends a scheduled three hours with provincial premiers.

The broadcast, on the CBC, the CTV Television Network and Global, is set for 6 p.m. PDT, despite protests from opposition parties that "partisan" broadcasts should not be made on the eve of elections.

There are two federal by-elections Tuesday.

The drama continued to build steadily Thursday as ministers dropped more hints of severe economic measures, as finance officials worked into the night on their assignments, as a team of writers stood by to put everything on paper and as corridors buzzed with reports of a new and mighty control board with power to roll back excessive increases in prices and incomes.

One reliable source said feelers were being put out for a chairman for the new board, which would likely swallow up the present Food Prices Review Board.

Beryl Plumptre, the chairman of the existing board, would retain a high-profile assignment in the new struc-

OTTAWA — New, tough Unemployment Insurance regulations are being considered by cabinet, according to government sources.

Out-of-work persons may be restricted to collecting a week of benefits for every week worked in the preceding 12 months and residents of provinces with a low jobless rate would collect fewer extended benefits than residents of high unemployment provinces.

Purpose of the changes, according to a source privy to the cabinet discussion on the economy Thursday, is not so much to save money for a government hard-pressed by high unemployment benefit costs but rather to remove a disincentive to work.

The federal government would save some money, however, while the provinces could be hit with higher welfare costs as a result.

Under the present regulations, an unemployed person can receive as much as 51 weeks benefits after eight weeks work. Under the proposed changes, a claimant would only receive the number of benefits equalling the number of weeks he had worked in the preceding 12 months.

The second proposal would link benefit rates to regional unemployment, rather than to national statistics, as is now the case.

B.C. Steals A March On Ottawa

The B.C. government stole a march on Ottawa Thursday by publicizing a $150 million cut in this year's budget just prior to the Thanksgiving Day federal-provincial conference at which Prime Minister Trudeau will unveil his government's new economic plan.

Although the province initiated its budget cut-back last December, it had refused until now to give any details of what was involved.

The aim is a minimum cut of 5 per cent in previously planned spending of $3.25 billion, according to Finance Minister Dave Stupich.

This move combined with the strong measures taken this week to put 58,000 striking or locked-out workers back on their jobs, is expected to give Premier Dave Barrett a leading role in the Ottawa talks.

Stupich, who took over the finance portfolio from Barrett a week ago, said he hopes the budget will balance despite declining revenues caused by the forest industry situation.

He expects to trim about $60 million through reductions in the civil service and about $90 million from other expenditures in the fiscal year ending next March 31.

The savings are designed to balance the budget but Stupich said if revenues start to pick up later in the year the money will be spent to expand or start new programs.

Stupich said no one is being laid off under the scheme but, since there is usually a time lag representing 10 per cent of the work force between when a person leaves and is replaced, departments have been asked to stretch the lag to the equivalent of 25 per cent before re-hiring.

Thus a department could be down to 75 per cent of its regular size before new hiring takes place.

Stupich said that with the fiscal year half over, revenues are running just below half the budgeted figure but no specific figures are available.

He said revenues from sales and income taxes are close to expected levels, revenues from coal royalties and the B.C. Petroleum Corp. are expected to exceed expectations but forest revenues are significantly lower.

Total revenues could reach at least $3.1 billion, he said.

B.C. ferries and some government hospitals have been exempted from the ruling, the minister said. If the treasury board is convinced extra hiring is necessary, it will be approved.

Winter Ferries Cut

B.C. Ferries plans to return to a reduced schedule of sailings between Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland during the winter months.

Last year for the first time the ferries operated on an hourly basis throughout the winter but ferry officials said today the full service was not being used and some ferries were running nearly empty.

Traffic volumes actually decreased last winter compared to 1973, probably because of the increased cost of gasoline, and officials don't expect traffic to pick up this year.

B.C. Ferries general manager Charles Gallagher said not only did less people use the ferries after the sailings were increased but the cost of overtime went up.

The new reduced sailing schedule is designed to meet peak needs and also to reduce working hours for employees to a straight 7½-hour shift, said Gallagher.

The winter schedule comes into effect in 10 days and will stay in effect until May 20, 1976.

On the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run six sailings will be eliminated from Monday to Thursday, with no service at 8 a.m., 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

This reduced schedule is the same as the winter service in effect in 1973.

Kissinger Conduct 'Shocking'

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The house select intelligence committee's final report on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will condemn him for conduct "much more shocking than the things I've examined within the CIA structure," says Rep. James V. Stanton, Dem—Ohio.

Stanton, who has no doubt the report will explode into a major issue in the upcoming presidential campaign, said the report — among other things — would reveal instances "where the secretary either misled or totally deceived congress."

"I think we're going to show examples of where he had information and could have acted with reasonable prudence to prevent certain events from occurring and he didn't allow the free flow of information to occur when it was within his power," Stanton said in a Washington interview published today by the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Two publicized examples of Kissinger's withholding or misusing vital information were negotiations involving Vietnam and Cyprus, according to Stanton, who refused to specify other accusations against Kissinger.

Stanton said he was bound by the committee's agreement with the Ford administration not to disclose details at this time.

B.C. Fed Alters Tack, IWA, Pulpmen on Job

A tentative agreement between B.C. forest companies and 29,000 IWA members, an about-face by the B.C. Federation of Labor and a recommendation that 13,000 striking pulp workers get back on the job will soon have the province's major industry back in business.

Labor federation Secretary Len Guy earlier said the back-to-work legislation should be fought in any possible way, but that stance was changed Thursday when the federation urged workers to return to work and comply with the bill.

The International Woodworkers of America agreement was reached Thursday evening, seconds before the industry and its major union would have felt the effects of the government's sweeping back-to-work legislation.

Shortly before the announcement of the tentative IWA settlement, leaders of B.C.'s two pulp unions said they are recommending that their members vote to comply with the government order and return to the jobs they left July 16 when the pulp strike began. There is little chance the pulp workers will vote against the recommendation.

However there were reports that pulp union pickets were still up today in Port Mellon and scattered points in the interior.

IWA coast locals are now setting up ratification meetings, but will return to work in the meantime.

Details of the IWA contract package have not been released, but it is believed the settlement sticks closely to recommendations made in the report by special mediator Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon.

It is believed the settlement includes a $1.55 an hour wage increase over the two years, improvements in the cost-of-living adjustment clause in the second year of the contract, changes in pension plan provisions and weekly indemnity payments to sick workers.

The IWA was not on strike, but most of its members were off work because of pulp picket lines and poor market conditions.

Had the union not settled before the deadline of about 5:35 p.m. Thursday, provisions in the back-to-work bill for retroactive pay and no strike or lockout for 90 days would have applied.

The pulp unions' recommendation to return to work avoids a confrontation be-

CZ TAKE DROPS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited reported Thursday a sharp drop in earnings in the third quarter.

The company had net earnings for the quarter of $256,000 or three cents a share on sales of $64.4 million. This compares with net earnings of $4.2 million or 53 cents a share in the same period of 1974.

Net earnings for the nine months were $9.2 million or $1.15 per share on sales of $233.2 million, compared with net earnings of $16.1 million or $2.02 per share in the first nine months of last year.

Postal Workers To Get Report

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Post office administrators are sending local offices what they say is a complete summary of a conciliation report dealing with a contract dispute in the hopes that union members will reject a request from their leaders for strike authorization, a gowernment spokesman said today.

The new summary, which will be available on request through post offices to the 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, differs from attempts by the government officials to correct "misleading" information sent by the union, he added.

Union leaders have begun a membership vote which should be complete by early next week. They are asking postal workers to give them a strike mandate unless the government accepts something close to their demands in contract talks.

If talks fail, there could be a strike by the latter part of next week if the members back their leaders.

The members have been asked to vote on the strike mandate, not the conciliation report prepared by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court.

"We want them to know what has been offered in the conciliation report before they throw it out and give the union leaders a strike mandate," the spokesman said. The government hopes the rank and file will not back a strike.

Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey will be in Victoria later today to speak to the annual convention of Canadian Postmasters Association at the Empress Hotel.

Mackasey will also hold a press conference on the labor troubles in the post office.

Mackasey said Thursday the government has a contingency plan to deliver pension and other benefit cheques in the event of a national postal strike.

"As long as I am postmaster general, no strike will interfere with the delivery of social benefit cheques," he said.

Meanwhile in Winnipeg, about 350 postal workers gave their national president a hearty round of applause Thursday night as he urged them to support a union strike vote.

Joe Davidson, president of the 22,000-member union, told the men: "Until we get what we want, we intend to fight like hell with this government"

BARRETT BOMB THREAT

VANDERHOOF (CP) — Two telephoned bomb threats were made Thursday against a school where Premier Barrett spoke.

The first threat against the Nechako Senior Secondary School was made during the day, causing some 600 students to be evacuated. A second threat was made before the premier spoke in the evening.

Police searched the building both times but no bomb was found.

RCMP in Vanderhoof refused to confirm or deny that a bomb threat had been made.

In the first part of the premier's fall tour there were signs of increased security after some threats were made against him but so far during the northern swing of his tour there has been little sign of RCMP protection.

Barrett was informed of the threat but he gave his address to 500 people in the school gymnasium, with no disturbance except for one heckler.

NHL TV SEASON OPENS TONIGHT

CBC-TV and Hockey Night in Canada will open their 23rd season as a team, when Canada's number one winter sport returns to the network on Saturday, October 11 at 5 p.m.

Last season's two-conference, four-division set-up proved so popular with the fans that the NHL is adopting the same plan once again, together with the playoff system that puts maximum emphasis on overall points achieved throughout the season.

In Montreal, Danny Gallivan and Dick Irvin return for their tenth season together. Dave Reynolds will host the telecasts.

In Toronto, it will be another solid team of veterans, with Bill Hewitt and Brian McFarlane handling play-by-play and color commentary, and Dave Hodge starting his fifth season as host.

The Vancouver team will be Jim Robson and Bill Good Junior. Ted Reynolds will act as host for most games.

Bob Goldham and Howie Meeker will share duties as analysts in Toronto, with Babe Pratt handling the same job in Vancouver.

The first telecast, on October 11, will feature the Chicago Black Hawks playing the Toronto Maple Leafs on the major CBC-TV network.

Valentino In Silent Classic

The Silent Years, a treaury of silent classics hosted by distinguished film star Lillian Gish, continues with a presentation of The Eagle, starring Rudolph Valentino. This dashing and romantic adventure will be broadcast October 11 at 9:00 p.m. on KCTS-9.

Set in the Imperial Court of 18th Century Russia, The Eagle provides Valentino with a tailor-made role — that of Vladimir, a handsome young Cossack guardsman. Banished from the Court of Catherine the Great, Vladimir becomes the bold "Black Eagle," a Russian Robin Hood, dedicated to robbing the rich and redistributing the wealth to the downtrodden peasants. A chance encounter with Mascha, lovely daughter of the rich but wicked landowner Kyrilla Trouekouroff, leads to perilous plot situations, and, of course, to the scenes of high passion Valentino fans anticipated. Critics have said that Valentino gives his best screen performance in this film.

THE REALITY OF VIOLENCE

The next episode of CTV's prestigious Human Journey series, titled Keeping the Peace, airing Sunday, October 12, 10:00-11:00 p.m. on CTV, studies long-established myths of crime and violence, lawmen and gunmen, set one against the other for a final shoot-out.

This intensive one-hour examination of the forces of crime and violence now polarizing all levels of society, digs into the past to find the journalists and photographers of the time romanticizing high noon shoot-outs, and one on one confrontations by glorifying these gunfights. Most of the time the shootings had already taken place and bodies were strategically placed for convincing photos to send to editors. This romancing was in fact a cover for the ugly and brutal reality of death.

All of us look beyond reality into a make-believe world from time to time to make our lives easier if we can. Keeping the Peace looks at the myths and finds the reality of crime and violence.

Not only does the program spend a week with inmates behind the bars of two security institutions, it follows the activities of one young police officer from the Hamilton-Wentworth region as he speaks about his very real concerns and apprehensions of going into back alleys, his worries over the increased use of firearms and his sometime sense of being divorced, somehow, from society.

"In fact," says Les Rose, CTV director, "society has said to him, 'Put the uniform on, here's your salary, now go and do the dirty work.' This officer feels that in keeping the peace everybody has to be involved in some way.

"We have produced a show," continued Rose, "that keeps both sides in context rather than trying to interpret what is evolving in our society. We are attempting to balance hard line approaches and hopefully change one-sided perspective."

The show finds that all of us are much the same, the men and women on our police forces, on the streets, and criminals in the prison system. The difference is that some are born into the unfortunate circumstances of poverty and inequality.

"In all areas examined by this program," Rose concludes, "everyone involved on both sides of the law must be seen in human terms."

Through a series of dramatized sequences, increased production and post-production values, Keeping The Peace is a program to provide stimulation, perception and insight with its provoking examination.

Caustic Comedian Celebrates His Eighty-Fifth Birthday

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Did you know that I was 85 years old on Oct. 2? Isn't that amazing?"

Of course, Groucho, and it's cause for celebration that Groucho Marx is alive and fairly well and living in accustomed luxury in the Trousdale Estates.

The birthday will be observed Oct. 12 with a star-filled luncheon in his honor by the Friends of the Library at the University of Southern California.

"I've written six books, and I never finished public school," he comments wonderingly. Curiously, his immense contributions to American humor have never been rewarded with an honorary degree from any university. Bob Hope has 31.

A visit with Groucho is always a delight, and he was in good form at a pre-birthday lunch at his home.

In some ways he exhibits his ample years. No more has he the loping walk. His steps are deliberate, his frame stooped. The words don't come with the same rattling speed — nor as scathingly.

But he is still Groucho.

"I no longer smoke, drink or make love," he remarked, expletive deleted. "I gave up cigars five years ago, figuring that I was too old to smoke.

"Not drinking hasn't bothered me; I was only a one-drink man anyway. As far as making love, age took care of that."

He sat down to a hearty lunch accompanied by apple cider "I read in the New York Times that it was good for old people."

As he sliced the chicken breast, he mused: "My mother was a lousy cook. My father was a great cook. But he was a lousy tailor."

Groucho had a coughing spell, and the ever-present Erin Fleming asked if he had taken his cough medicine. Twice, he replied.

Miss Fleming, an attractive brunette with a sharp mind, has been guardian of the Marx legend for several years. She watches his health, makes deals for books, merchandize licensing, TV reruns, etc., collecting a 15-per-cent fee as manager.

GROUCHO MARX

Her only complaint is that she would like to get married, and Groucho keeps scaring off her potential suitors.

"My quiz show went on Channel 5 here as a 13-week experiment, and now it's the most popular program on an independent station," Groucho remarked proudly. Indeed, re-release of the 1951-1961 You Bet Your Life series has caused a new wave of Grouchomania.

Even though the films are in black-and-white, the Marxian dialogue retains its color, and You Bet Your Life now is appearing on 44 channels, including one seen in Toronto.

Refusing to live in the past, Groucho spends time with such admirers as Bill Cosby, Marvin Hamlisch, Jack Nicholson and Bud Cort, the latter a current houseguest. But there is no mistaking Groucho's sense of loss as he walks down a hallway-gallery and points to photos of Al Jolson, Jack Benny, Edward G. Robinson, Harry Ruby, and especially his late brother Harpo — "a wonderful man."

TV Keeps Oscar Winner Working

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Art Carney was conspicuous beneath a huge terry cloth towel, his head protected by a floppy hat from the California sun at the hotel swimming pool.

Art sopped up a Tom Collins and scribbled on a yellow legal pad.

"I'm writing notes on the character I play in a new movie," he explained. "The writer didn't define my role very well. I play a studio chief."

Carney held up the pad. He had written:

ART CARNEY
. . . in upcoming special with Gleason

"That's the way I see the guy," Art said. He rubbed his own swollen right arm painfully.

Asked how he hurt himself, his wife, Barbara, answered, "lifting drinks."

An injured Art Carney drew back aghast. "Not true," he said with overplayed dignity. "I got it playing lacrosse."

Since winning the Academy Award for Harry and Tonto, Carney has managed to stay busy. He recently starred in the two-hour movie, Katharine, with Jane Wyatt, a take-off on the Patty Hearst kidnapping.

He's taped a guest shot with Tony Orlando and Dawn and co-stars on a Lucille Ball special.

His new movie, Won Ton Ton, The Dog Who Saved Hollywood, is a comedy based loosely on Rin-Tin-Tin.

But of all his activities Art savors most an October reunion with Jackie Gleason.

"It's the 25th anniversary of the first Honeymooners show," he said with a dumb Ed Norton grin on his face. "I want us to play it like Ralph Kramden and Norton are two old guys. But I don't think Jackie will go for it.

Carney sang a paean of affection for Gleason, recalling they'd quarreled only once in the 20 years they worked together. Jackie, no stranger to the grape himself, once gave Art hell for drinking.

"He's the greatest guy in the world," said Art. "We'd see the show together and Jackie laughed harder at me than he did at himself.

"You know what he did when I won the Oscar? He called me at 6 o'clock the next morning when I was still in bed.

"Barbara and I had been out all night celebrating, dancing the Lindy Hop and doing all them fancy dips. He talked to me for 20 minutes. Now we'll be working together again."

Is it possible Carney has forgotten how to play sewer worker Norton?

"Are you kidding?" he cried. "I am Norton. That's the real me. The hat Norton wears is mine. I bought it in 1935 when I was in high school.

"It will be good to play Norton again — like crawling back into my own skin."

Art removed the terry cloth towel. His skin was the color of chalk, contrasting with Barbara's golden tan. He quickly rewrapped himself in it. "Irish," he explained.

India's Royal Era Recalled in Drama

Visions of royal India — a land of maharajas whose wealth gave them unlimited power — are recalled in An Autobiography of a Princess, October 13 at 8:00 p.m. on KCTS-9. Rare archive footage of India is shown as a self-exiled Indian princess, and an elderly Englishman who once tutored her father reveal conflicting perspectives about their former way of life.

In this one hour, part fiction, part documentary special, the princess, portrayed by Madhur Jaffrey lives in a London apartment filled with paintings and memorabilia of India. On the anniversary of her late father's birth, she prepares for a meeting with Cyril Sahib (James Mason), her father's tutor and private secretary.

As they review old home movies of royal India, as well as a contemporary TV documentary which features some of the ex-royalty, it becomes clear that the princess longs for the past, and is indifferent to the sufferings of the masses. But Cyril is bored by the pageantry, and resists her request to write a book preserving a record of those "glorious" times.

This look at the emotional ties some Indians feel for their past seems particularly appropriate now, as India undergoes still another political upheaval.

Soundstage Blends Pop Talent

Two of the most influential forces in recent popular music — Blood, Sweat and Tears (featuring David Clayton-Thomas) and Janis Ian — show off the talents that made them so widely admired and respected on Soundstage, Oct. 14 at 10:00 p.m. on KCTS-9.

Before the advent of Blood, Sweat and Tears, no one had ever used a brass section in rock music, but after their 1968 debut in New York, their horn-rock stylings became the most imitiated sound in rock. Upon the addition of Canadian singer David Clayton-Thomas, B. S and T. began turning out hits like Spinnin' Wheel, And When I Die.

Janis Ian's contributions to popular music are more lyrical. Following in the folk-oriented tradition, Janis reaffirmed the social consciousness of pop lyrics with her song Society's Child. The tune, banned at some radio stations as "too controversial," dealt with the problems faced by a pair of interracial lovers.

Despite the touchy subject matter, Society's Child became a hit and, at 16, established Janis Ian as a star. After several more albums and a brief respite for mental and musical regrouping, Janis delighted her fans last year with an album called Between the Lines and repeated the feat this year with "Stars."

VICTORIAN JOINS BCTV STAFF

John McKeachie joins the BCTV Sports Department as a sports reporter, with a varied background in broadcasting and athletics.

A native of Victoria, John has been active in organized sports from the age of 9, throughout his education. John's 3 years at the University of Victoria were the highlights of his athletic career — specifically senior baseball and varsity basketball. He comes by his athletic ability from his family: both his father and uncle were members of the famous "Dominoes" Canadian Basketball Champions in the 40's. In 1964, John became a junior partner in a sporting goods store, where he had worked since he was 15. It was here that John designed and sold the California Seals hockey team their first NHL uniforms. In the fall of '67, John left to work for the Phoenix Roadrunners hockey club, where he became involved in everything from color commentary and play by play to training and public relations.

Following this, he returned to university. In May, 1970, while looking for a summer job, John broke into the world of broadcasting. CKDA Radio, Victoria hired him, not part-time, but as full-time sports director.

In August of '72, he joined the staff of CKNW Radio as assistant sportscaster. This was his first direct encounter with NHL and CFL action.

John's been credited with "not only getting the sports news — but getting it first". He has an uncanny persistence and knack for getting impossible connections. It's been said that John is a "Great Telephone Detective" — conning operators into digging up information. His sense of humor and good wit is evident in his broadcasts.

John McKeachie will be covering weekend sports on the News Hour Final and the Sunday 6 o'clock edition of News Hour-Access. He may often be seen on the weekday editions of News Hour with on location reporting or holding down the fort in Bernie Pascall's absence.

Some of the artists featured are Mike Seeger and Alice Gerrard, The Good Brothers, Steve Goodman, Sam Chatman, Leon Redbone, Tommy Makem, John Hammond, Len Udow, Stan Rogers and The Friends of Fiddlers' Green. Also appearing is Touch The Earth's host, Sylvia Tyson herself, singing and playing paino, guitar and autoharp.

Paper Man (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. An intriguing, imaginative 1971 drama about a group of bright university students who use a computer to create a fictitious human being and go off on a buying spree with the character's credit card, until the machine begins to develop a dangerous mind of its own. Summer Series Star Complains of Cover-Up

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Joey Heatherton has a beautiful face and a gorgeous body.

CBS was willing to have audiences look at one but not the other this past summer.

Joey's blonde pixie visage was approved by network blue noses, but her long, slender legs and generous bosom were taboo.

She was supposed to star in a four-week mini-series as a replacement for Cher Bono in July. The show was titled Joey and Dad.

Joey was seen almost as infrequently as Howard Hughes.

She remains baffled about seeing so little of herself when she tuned in the show.

"They made me wear blouses with necklines up to here," Joey said, drawing an imaginary line at her adams apple.

"It was all right for me to sing and appear in sketches. But they wouldn't let me dance very much and leotards were out of the question."

Unless one observes Joey in leotards, one is not truly seeing the genuine Joey. She does for tights and leotards what Liberace does for sequins, what Lawrence Welk does for bubbles, what Lana Turner did for sweaters.

Joey and Dad

Other stars cavort around in next to nothing — Cher for one — while Joey is censored. Maybe it's the look in her wide-set blue eyes: Whatever the reason, she feels discriminated against.

"I can't explain the network attitude toward me," she said. "I don't do anything sensuous or erotic. I just dance."

Joey evidently is unaware that simply walking across a room or stretching languidly — she did both in a Beverly Hills restaurant during lunch — was enough to brighten the afternoon of nearby males.

"I was doing a commercial the other night for a mattress company," she pouted. "They made me sit on the bed in a long dress that covered my arms and neck and all of my legs. It was supposed to look like a nightgown.

"That same company let me wear a shorty nightgown when we did the commercial last year. I can't figure what's going on."

This deplorable state of affairs will be corrected in New York during the next two months, as well as in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Philadelphia and points west. Joey has worked up a new club act and is hitting the road.

"You can do what you please in a nightclub," she said. "And wear what you like.

"I want to do everything — sing, dance and wear beautiful clothes.

"So I came out here to work with Rudy Rendler. He said I was absolutely right. And now I have a great new act."

Joey did not indicate what she would wear in her new act. However, one gathered that she would not be covered from neck to knee in burlap. Nor would dad be around to keep an eye on her.

B.C. Indian Tribes Featured in PBS Anthropology Series

From the masks and totems of the Northwest Indians to the rugs of the Qashqa'i nomads of Iran, the Tribal Eye investigates tribal art, and the people and places that produced it. This seven part series, airing Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. (beginning October 15) and Sundays at 6:00 p.m. (beginning October 19) visits sixteen different cultures in its exploration of the different meanings behind some of the world's most priceless art. The Sunday telecasts will be captioned for the hearing impaired.

The programs are the result of two years of thorough research by a team led by noted British zoologist and documentary filmmaker David Attenborough. Attenborough was also quite familiar with the elements necessary for a good television series, having been the head of BBC 2 for its first eight years: he was the man responsible for introducing serialized novels (such as the Forsyte Saga), comedy (Monty Python), sports, and color to that network.

The producers had no preconceived notions when they began. As Attenborough explains: "We, ourselves, were on journeys of exploration. We did not know all the answers. We delibefately had no script before we started because we wanted to have the freedom to take advantage of what happened. As a result, we would discover phenomena that aren't in any book, and the whole film would turn in a new direction.

Because of this fluidity, each show has a different feeling to it. For example, the rugmakers program has a lyrical mood, while the Northwest Indian show is sociological.

In order to assure authenticity, the filmmakers employed a variety of experts and advisers. William Fagg, the retired keeper of the Museum of Mankind, was series adviser: he too was dedicated to "appreciating each cluture on its own terms." Attenborough also used experts known and trusted by local tribes, people who could also act as interpreters and go-betweens. Among the Kwakiutl Indians, this person was Peter MacNair, an anthropologist from Victoria, B.C.

MacNair was instrumental in getting the British team permission to film the Northwest Indians' potlatch. Many of the Indians were "fed up" with being misrepresented by visitors. They especially mistrusted camera crews. Posters such as "Anthropologist, Go Home" and "White Man, Learn About Yourself" were in evidence.

However, MacNair convinced them of Attenborough's sincerity and purpose, and the filming proceeded. This program about the Kwakiutl tribe, entitled the Crooked Beak of Heaven — is the series' premiere. In it, Attenborough shows "that it is possible for a tribal society like the Kwakiutl Indians to move right into the 20th century, to master all its complexities, to be able to use modern trawling boats and navigational devices in order to go on with their fishing, to become expert in commerce and finance, and still to believe in the importance of their ancient rituals."

One of the ceremonies that has survived and is, in fact, growing in size and number is the potlatch. A great feast given by an important man in the tribe who is about to receive a new rank or new rights, potlatches previously had been suppressed by the white governments. At these feasts, the host would give away a variety of goods to show his importance. In the last century, chiefs on this resource-rich land amassed considerable wealth which resulted in extravagant potlatches.

After long negotiations, the Attenborough team gained permission to film the potlatch of Arthur Dick, an hereditary chief and a leading fisherman at Alert Bay in British Columbia.

The masks, totems and customs of the Kwakiutl Indians are also examined during this show. One of the most awesome of the dances featured is the Hamatsa, the dance of the cannibal birds. It is from one of these fearsome creatures, Crooked Beak of Heaven, that the program derives its title.

CLASSIC THEATRE — Blind poet John Milton discovers a new life in Paradise Restored, a dramatization of the writer's life and work to be seen on Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 9. The play, written especially for television, stars John Neville and Anne Stallybrass.

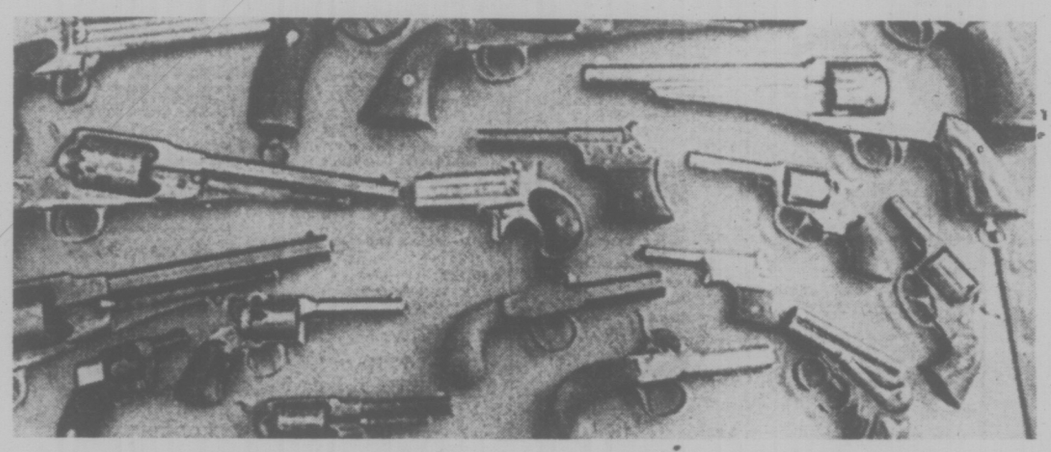
Maclear Reports on Guns—The Fatal Freedom

A sign above the counter of a Boston gun store bears a quotation from the U.S. Constitution: "A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." Most Canadians are all too aware of the violence which pervades many U.S. cities, but may not realize the extent to which crimes involving guns have increased in Canada. On Thursday, October 16, 9:30-10:00 p.m., correspondent Michael Maclear examines the controversial subject of gun control legislation and the mentality of those who oppose it in the Maclear episode, Guns: The Fatal Freedom.



In Montreal, armed robberies have tripled and murders have more than doubled within a year. An ex-gunman refers to Montreal as "holdup city of the world." The fear that makes the average citizen in cities such as Boston or Detroit afraid to leave his home after dark may be spreading across the border. A feeling of grim fatalism, that our cities will go the way of the States simply because of the number of guns available, may conceivably deter Canada from clamping down on violence until it's too late.

There are existing laws, which if enforced to the hilt, could reduce the number of crimes-with-guns. However, opponents to gun-control legislation are fierce in their defence. There is the hunting enthusiast, the gun collector, the man who thinks he can defend his family and property . . . in reality, five times as many family members die from household handgun accidents as those killed by intruding strangers. Boston Police Commissioner DiGratzia feels strongly that there is no legitimate reason to own a handgun . . . "As far as I'm concerned, a handgun is—a people killer . . . a people hunter . . . that's all it's for . . . nothing else."

To a great extent, Canada is a "hostage of American federal policy," another U.S. observer tells Maclear. "The flow of handguns from loose states to tight states is tremendous" and the subsequent flow across the Canadian border limits Canada's options as long as U.S. "federal policy and enforcement are as lax as they are."

Film clips from violent movies, real-life assassination attempts, and scenes from the funerals of recent publicized victims of shootings reveal the irony of our society's romanticizing of fictional and historical crime and the actual tragic reality of gun-violence in today's world.

Human Element Enhances Serio-Comic TV Series

By TOM SHALES

WASHINGTON (WP) — Good Times has far more warmth than the average landmark, but when it premiered on CBS in February, 1974, it did represent a breakthrough. It was the first weekly series about a complete black family; Sanford and Son was about only a widowed father and his son, and The Jeffersons came later.

Thus were years of all-white television sit-com families — the Ozzies, the Harriets, the Jim Andersons (Father Knows Best), the lives of Riley — partially avenged, about 20 years late. Long gone are the servile Willie Best characters who waited obediently on the Stuart Erwin family (The Trouble With Father) and the mammy figure whose finest hours were those spent in service to the whites who employed her as a maid (Beulah) in TV of the 50s.

Good Times, which began its third season this fall is really too good to dismiss as a mere milestone. It is first, and finest, about people, and the people it presents in weekly seriocomic stories set in the Chicago ghetto are gratifyingly human and wholeheartedly worth knowing.

In addition, the show's writers make sure the family is constantly faced with problems that matter, and that they confront them in terms with which the great American viewer, that multiracial composite, can emphathize. The season began with James, the father, having completed a heavy equipment course and landing a job at last. But the job turned out to be on the Alaskan pipeline, and the family wouldn't let him go away for a year, so his unemployment continues, as it does for millions of others.

John Amos and Esther Rolle

In a recent episode, James reacts to the rising wave of crime in his neighborhood by bringing home a piece of protection — a .32 caliber pistol, a "Saturday Night Special."

It can't be said that such issues are always faced without the mincing of words. Words get minced in television as fast as they can be thought. But in terms of television reality, "Good Times" tries to make a point and often succeeds. James noted that the recession might be over for President Ford, but it wasn't for the Evans family: "He's swimming," James cracked, "and we're drowning."

He and wife, Florida, argued about the dangers of keeping that gun in the house. James repeats the gun lobby cliche that guns don't kill people, people kill people.

"Without guns," Florida replies, "and it ain't gonna stop until some of these politicians get the guts to outlaw them."

Primarily, of course, though themes in the past got as grim as the problem of teenage alcoholsim and themes in the season ahead will include drug addiction and "the dignity of death," "Good Times" is still a comedy, and for the most part this comedy is realized in rich and natural ways; life with the Evanses is not just one long one-liner.

Even when the material lags (Eric Monte, formerly the story editor, has gone on to movies like Cooley High, the cast helps see it through. Esther Rolle remains strong and resolute as Florida, but this is not a matriarchy; John Amos (who delayed shooting a week this summer while holding out for more money) is clearly the head of the family. He only has to start unbuckling his belt to drive home a point with his children.

At first Good Times was a spin-off of a spin-off; "Maude" grew out of All In The Family and Good Times out of Maude. Now Lear goes around Hollywood saying that if he hears the word "spin-off," again he will, reports a Tandem staff member, "throw up." Spinning off is spinning off, but Good Times has progressed far beyond its origins. For millions it is now a regular part of the viewing week (ranking frequently within the top 10 shows and consistently in the top 20).

LAST SEASON FOR MTM?

By ARTHUR UNGER

HOLLYWOOD, California — "One more season beyond this and then good-bye," says Mary Tyler Moore, star of The Mary Tyler Moore Show, which is now into its sixth season on CBS.

"I want to take a year off and do nothing," she explains as she cracks open a freshly roasted peanut from a huge bowl in the MTM Enterprises office of her husband, Grant Tinker, who heads the organization.

And then what?

"Well, then it will be time to start thinking about my comeback. And I have an idea it will be in some musical form.

"I love television and that's the medium I want to work in. I grew up singing and dancing and I've kept it up. But, except for the special, I haven't done any of that sort of thing on television."

MARY TYLER MOORE

Miss Moore has just completed a variety show, featuring most of the MTM family of stars, in which there are no spoken words at all. Only singing and dancing. It will air on CBS early next year.

"I loved every minute of that special and it was very hard work. However, I'm a masochist, so there you are.

"When CBS asked for the special, I said I didn't want to do it unless it was indeed special. And I think it is. Now, I don't want to do just another variety show either. It will take a lot of thinking and a lot of lassoing of talent on Grant's part to get the kind of creative people together who can think of a new concept for variety.

"I think the form is tired. The only thing that keeps 'The Carol Burnett Show' going is the talent and personality of Carol. Certainly not the variety form. So, hopefully, we'll be able to come up with something unusual."

Miss Moore is very concerned about the family viewing hour which went into effect on all the networks this season. Although her own show airs later in the evening, her production company has been running into problems with the Cloris Leachman show, Phyllis.

"There is a danger that the family hour will result in nothing but pap. And we are likely to lose a lot of extremely talented writers who simply refuse to write that sort of material," says Miss Moore.

"What I object to most," says Mary Tyler Moored, "is the coupling of sex and violence in the decision to initiate a family hour. Almost all of the offensiveness that I have seen on television has been in the area of violence."
